ADVERTISEMENT.
46, Lower Baggot-street, 13th Feb. 1839.
THE RECORDER of Limerick, begs to acquaint Mr. BINDON, in reply to his Letter of this day, that according to the assurance he made in Court immediately on his return to Dublin, he put himself in communication with the four Divisional Police Offices, with the Commissioners of the Metropolitan Police, and with the Recorder of Dublin, the result was, that he was satisfied that Mr. Bindon's statement made in Court, was fully substantiated—and that his House ought not to be classed among those which, by the Act, were intended to be regulated. On the same day on which he had the communication with the Recorder of Dublin, 18th January, he wrote his opinion fully to the Mayor of Limerick, for the information and guidance of the Court; that the conviction against Mr. Bindon ought to be quashed, and that his House ought not to be visited. He is surprised Mr. Bindon was not made acquainted with his opinion. Mr. Bindon will be pleased to accept the Recorder of Limerick's best thanks, for his kind expressions towards him.

Ospisdale Barley—Very superior new sort, raised in Scotland.

ELEGANT AND EXPEDITIOUS PENMANSHIP.
MR. M'LOUGHLIN, (from London, and direct from the Academic Association of Dublin, where he has been appointed for the last twelve months as FINISHING WRITING MASTER,) respectfully announces his arrival in this City, where he purposes to remain for ONE MONTH ONLY. His system of Instruction in the beautiful Art of Writing, has been matured by several years' successful practice in correcting a bad method, finishing in every kind of Plain and Ornamental Writing, and imparting a free and bold execution in the various styles of Penmanship.
From this experience, he is enabled with confidence to promise, that in a few Lessons he will reform the worst hand—enable his Pupils to Write (without the aid of painting), Large Hand, German Text, and all the various kinds of Ornamental Writing—so absolutely necessary to the Attorney, the Engineer, the Surveyor, and the Constructor of Maps, the want of which is found to be so great a drawback on Pupils entering the Navy, Military, and East India Colleges, and several other Professions.
Ladies are instructed in a peculiarly elegant and accomplished style for One Guinea, Pen-making included. Ladies and Gentlemen who are in the habit of Teaching, may be perfected in various hands, upon COMMUNICATIVE MATHEMATICAL PRINCIPLES, in three or four days. Terms for such a course, including all secrets belonging to the art, Two Guineas. By this system they will be enabled to forward their Pupils more in ten days than they otherwise could possibly accomplish in twelve months.
From Mr. M'LOUGHLIN's acknowledged capabilities, he is enabled to assert, that he can offer to Pupils advantages very rarely to be obtained. His SYSTEM of SHORT HAND, which he teaches in a few lessons, for Half-a-guinea, will be found to give satisfaction to those designed for the Learned and other Professions requiring expert note takers.
Application to be made at his Rooms, No. 8, WILLIAM-STREET, where may be had his "Beauties of the Art of Penmanship," Price 5s.; and "A Plain Treatise on Short Hand," Price 1s. 6d.; also specimens of his Penmanship, in various kinds.
All terms according to agreement, paid in advance. From the numerous testimonials which Mr. M'LOUGHLIN possesses from "The Dublin Academic Association," he requests the readers attention to the following, by DOCTOR WALL, D.D. and M.R.I.A. "6, Hume-street, Dublin, Feb. 28, 1839."
"On a former occasion I had the pleasure of adding mine to the numerous list of testimonials to the excellence of Mr. M'LOUGHLIN's system of Penmanship.—"Since that I have had the actual experience of its practical working with boys, having engaged Mr. M'LOUGHLIN as Professor of Ornamental Writing and Stenography in my school for the last year, during which the progress and proficiency of the pupils committed to his care, have exceeded my most sanguine expectations. Indeed, I think I may say he has left some pupils behind him, who from his instruction, execute the various kinds of ornamental writing, in a style little inferior to his own. So satisfied am I with the efficiency of his method and the utility of the art, that I have had a master trained to continue the system in my establishment.
"I feel it my duty also to bear testimony to Mr. M'LOUGHLIN's great punctuality and zeal, for the improvement of his pupils."
