From Major BEVAN's new and valuable work, "Thirty Years in India," advertised in our columns this day, a copy of which has just come to hand from the London Press, the following vivid picture caught our eye—"The harbour and splendid river of Rio, with the lofty and majestic mountains on each side that bound it, clothed to the summits with verdure, under the scenery bold and fair as any in the world. Occasional glimpses of the Portuguese white-washed houses are to be seen through the foliage of the trees, scattered along the banks of the river, amid a rich variety of shrubs and evergreens, orange trees, &c., forming a delightful, cool, and shady retreat from the scorching rays of a mid-day sun, which are overpowering here during the summer season. This agreeable shade is formed not merely by trees and shrubs, but also by a vast variety of parasitical plants, whose classification would give employment to botanists for a twelve month. They grow to an enormous size, exhibiting the greatest diversities of flowers and foliage; and, being interlaced and intertwined with each other, they form a canopy which no art could imitate. Lizards, of countless species, sport over these mazes of flowers and leaf, seeming as if they were playing upon a carpet of rainbows. It is not easy to force a passage through these thickets of a thousand colours; if a person intrudes, he runs the risk of bringing a whole forest about his ears, together with innumerable hordes of his tenants, whose company would be anything but agreeable. The Portuguese appear partial to music; the sound of the guitar, and other instruments, with vocal and plaintive airs, breathe forth their softened tones, which wafted along the glassy and placid surface of the waters (scarcely ruffled) are in unison with that still hour of repose "the Siesta." Several instances of the vindictive character of the Portuguese occurred during the stay of the British squadron, by stabbing some of the men, out of mere wantonness and jealousy. Sir Sidney's threat of hanging the first offender put a stop to this treachery. Nature appears to have done every thing for the country; man seems perversely to have acted, as if bound to oppose nature, and has ruined it irretrievably. For the first time, I beheld a land with any industrial middle classes. All manual labour is performed by the Negroes; were the slave trade abolished, the entire industry of the country would be at end. Even in the first fervour of loyalty on the King of Portugal's arrival, the jealousy between the Brazilians and the Portuguese who accompanied the royal family became manifest, and there were many who already speculated on the revolution which severed Brazil from Portugal. The separation has since been effected, and Brazil has been termed a land of liberty! Liberty is truly useful as a protection to industry and economy, but I have yet to learn its value in a country possessing neither the one or the other."

The speakers were, Rev. R. Scott, Rev. R. Knill, Rev. E. Grindrod, and Rev. J. B. Gillman, who forcibly illustrated the helpless and forlorn condition of millions of immortal souls, to this day in a state of Heathen darkness, and utterly destitute of Gospel light. TO THE EDITOR OF THE LIMERICK CHRONICLE.
Upper Malloy-street, April 16, 1839.

SIR—In confirmation of the statement made by me in my letter published in the Limerick Standard of the 8th instant, I beg to furnish you with the following copy of the affidavit of the injured person, the original of which is in my possession.

As a humble follower of Him who "when He was reviled, reviled not again," I abstain from angry recrimination. The public will draw their own conclusion from the accompanying document, and will easily understand both the motive which influenced me in bringing this transaction before them; and the reason, the sole reason, of my having preserved from exposure the name of a highly respectable lady, young, defenceless, a Protestant, and my parishioner.

I remain, Sir, your obedient servant.
DAWSON MASSY,
Curate of St. Michael's.

(COPY.)
County of the City of } A. B. of C. D. in the County of Limerick—to wit. } the City of Limerick, spinster, came before me and made oath on the Holy Evangelists, that on the evening of Thursday, the 28th day of March last, she, this deponent, accompanied by several other females proceeded to St. Michael's Chapel, situate in Denmark-street, in said city, for the purpose of witnessing the ceremonies of Holy Thursday; saith, that on entering the Chapel she perceived two Clergymen engaged at the Altar, and shortly after one of them, the younger of the two, whom deponent believes to be the Rev. James Raleigh, R.C. Curate of that parish, handed to the other officiating Priest a silver vessel, which she has since heard contained what is called "the Host;" saith that the elder Priest proceeded onwards from the altar, and was preceded by the younger, who on coming up to where deponent was standing, called out to her in a loud and angry voice, "to kneel down or immediately leave the chapel!" saith that she, the deponent, answered him that she could not do so, and immediately she heard the words "bloody heretic," and said Raleigh then angrily pushed this deponent down on her knees; saith that as soon as she got up she stated, "that if to be a Protestant was to be a bloody heretic, she was one;" and saith, that on recovering from the agitation induced by the harsh treatment she experienced, she saw the said Raleigh rudely pushing from the Chapel another female whom she knew to be a Protestant, and whom he put outside the door, and shut the same in her face; saith, that on getting out of the Chapel, such was the treatment she had received there, that she was obliged to lean against the outward wall, before she could recover sufficient strength to proceed home, and saith that she has not since recovered the effects of the treatment she has received.

Deponent positively saith, she does not make this affidavit from any vindictive feeling, but with a view to substantiate the statement already made by her to the Rev. Dawson Massy, and as an act of justice to him.—Sworn before me this 15th day of April, 1839.
G. H. FITZ-GERALD, Mayor of Limerick.

The following is the Letter to which Mr. Massy refers:—

Upper Malloy-street, April 8, 1839.

DEAR SIR—I have just seen the Rev. Mr. Malone's Letter of this day, denying that any insult was offered at the Franciscan Chapel, to the Protestant Ladies who attended it on Thursday evening, before Easter.

As I was the person who gave you the information to which Mr. M.'s Letter alludes, I felt bound to substantiate its truth, and, consequently, called this evening on the young Lady in question, to know the full particulars of the whole transaction.

She solemnly affirms that she was treated with the utmost rudeness in a Roman Catholic Chapel, on the evening you have mentioned, but in the R. C. chapel of St. Michael's, (not in the Franciscan) by the Rev. Mr. Raleigh, not by Rev. Mr. Malone; and that your statement is substantially correct.

The young Lady naturally shrinks from giving her name to the public, but as her Parish Minister, I have no hesitation in stating my conviction that her testimony is worthy of credit; and I beg to add, that I myself would never mention the circumstance to you, but from my heart-felt desire that your noticing it in your widely circulated journal might deter Protestants from countenancing, by their presence, the erroneous rites of an impious Idolatry, from the low motive of idle curiosity. The apprehension of meeting rudeness or insult in such places, may keep those away from them—those whom a better principle does not control.

I remain, dear Sir, yours truly,
DAWSON MASSY,
Curate of the Parish of St. Michael's,
Limerick.
