Rev. Dawson Massy. My DEAR SIR,

Feel great pleasure in complying with the request of your late Parishioners, to become the medium of presenting you their address, containing those sentiments of esteem and affection which are so generally felt and expressed by all those who had pleasure of knowing you in public or private. Believe me that I join most sincerely in the sentiments which the address contains, and in common with your Parishioners entertain a hope that you will be soon enabled to resume those Ministerial duties which have already been blessed to the souls of many.

I am, Dear Sir, Your very faithful friend and servant JAMES SEXTON, High Sheriff City Limerick.

TO THE REV. DAWSON MASSY. REV. AND DEAR SIR,-With sentiments of the most sincere regard for your public and private character, as a Christian and a Minister of the Gospel, we, the undersigned Protestant inhabitants of the parish of Saint Michael, address you on resigning the Curacy in which you have labored for four years with remarkable zeal, ability, and success.

At a time when our venerated Church is so violently assailed on all sides, it is a source of unfeigned pleasure to all the friends of true religion, that so much piety and energy exists amongst the great body of our Clergy, whilst others, with a pious emulation, are daily pressing into the ranks, anxious to bear, their portion of "the burden and heat of the day," not only manifesting in their lives the holiness of the purest ages of christianity, but displaying in their exertions the ardour of apostolic zeal; and it was with the deepest regret we heard of that severe illness which caused your withdrawal from the number. But we trust, though the scene of your labors may be changed, that the Lord will yet enable you to resume them amongst others who will value, as we do, the benefits of a faithful and unwearied Ministry.

Our sense of the importance of that portion of the clerical duty in which you, were more especially occupied—" visiting from house to house"—the flock entrusted to your care—bringing back the wandering sheep of Christ's fold—confirming in the faith those who wavered, building up the believers, and pouring the balm of spiritual consolation into the wounded conscience, is so strong, grateful and well founded, that we trust its influence will be both permanent in duration and beneficial in result.

Tho' the ties which hatherto united you to us seem to be severed, yet our respect for your character is of no fleeting nature, nor shall our affectionate regard for you be diminished by time or distance, and wherever it may be your lout o labor, our prayer shall still ascend to the throne of grace that your ministry may be abundantly blessed, and your eternal reward secure.

With these feelings we beg to offer as a slight token of our attachment, the accompanying Bible, knowing it will be acceptable in a higher degree, than a gift far more costly, and that whenever you look into its Sacred Pages, you will, with the sentiments of a Christian Minister, think of those who received you amongst them with gratitude and pleasure, and parted from you with sorrow and regret.

[To this Address were attached nearly Six Hundred

Signatures.]

Kilkee, 5th September, 1839. My DEAR SIR-Accept my warmest, my sincerest thanks for the very kind and friendly terms in which you have conveyed to me the Address of my late Parishioners.

Be assured that neither time nor distance shall ever efface from my recollection the kindness I have experienced from so many friends in Limerick-and that I am, and ever will remain.

Your most obliged and Faithful friend and servant, DAWSON MASSY. James Sexton, Esq. High Sheriff City Limerick.

Kilkee, September 1839. My Dear Friends—Your kind approval of my services during the period of my Ministry in the parish of St. Michael, is very gratifying to me. It was indeed my intention (had my health permitted) to remain in a parish and amongst a people, so deservedly dear to me; but you are aware that I have not willingly resigned St. Michael's; nor could your late humble minister be prevailed upon to "take his hand from the plough"—until life appeared to be fast ebbing, and that night approaching when no an work." Having no wish " to stand all the day idle," it is the earnest desire of my heart to be once more in the vineyard, as soon as my heart permits, and it will, I am sure, be gratifying to you to hear that your late Curate is now sought for by many who are in want of labours.

I need not say, that your beautiful present is most ecceptable," dearer to me than thousands of gold and silver; and I shall, with the Holy Spirit's aid, "devoutly read therein by day, and meditate by night," for thereby only the Man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works.

And now, my dear friends, farewell-I leave you (all I have to leave) my blessing; nor will I, at this moment, restrict my good will to you, my friends— Limerick, and all its people, shall ever have my best wishes, and my prayers. Yes! that all my late fellow Citizens without distinction of sect or party, may hear the voice of the good shepherd, who laid down his life for them, be one fold under him, and never be plucked from his hand" is and shall ever be the heartfelt wish and Your affectionate friend. prayer of DAWSON MASSY.
