A draft for the 76th, at Demerara, is ordered to embark at Cork. MORTALITY IN THE 76th REGIMENT AT DEMERARA (From the Dublin Evening Packet.)

Demerara, July 13, 1839. "Since I wrote many fine fellows have breathed their last. Hopkins died on the 29th of June, Dickenson on the 10th of July, and Colonel Dansey on the 12th. The following officers are very bad, indeed:—Captain Bruce, Lieut. Tydd, Ensign Whitter, Doctor Birrell and Quartermaster Preston; Misses and Mrs. Preston are also in fever. There are only two officers of the Regiment fit for duty. They, you may well imagine, have plenty to do, there being no Colonel, no Major, no Captain, no Paymaster, Quartermaster Sergeant, Sergeant-Major, or Doctor. There are not enough of men to inter the dead, and black troops are employed for that purpose. The commandant has been prevailed on to allow the remainder of the Regiment to be removed from its barracks. There were fifty men detached yesterday, and fifty more will move to-morrow, to outposts for change of air. There will then be only fifty men at headquarters.

"JULY 16.—Five men have died since I commenced this letter, and many, I fear, will follow. "JULY 20.—The vessel to convey this has been delayed, and I have opened it to tell you that poor Bruce died last night, after five days' illness. He was a nephew of General Cuppage, who lives at Coolock, near Dublin. This yellow fever is a frightful disease. Poor Col. Dansey was 48 hours ill. The commandant of the Regiment has devolved on Lieut. and Adjutant J. Gore Ferns, until the arrival of Captain Gardiner from Berbice. It is a rare occurrence that a Lieutenant commands a regiment. The Court of Policy are paying for lodgings for the men in the town.

"Six o'clock—I am just returned from burying poor Bruce and five others. We hardly get coffins made fast enough." Edmond John McMahon, Esq. Deputy Assistant-Commissionary-General, has arrived from Gambia, on a visit to his brother-in-law, Jeffery Eagar, Kerry, to recruit his health.

The Hon. Captain Hastings, brother to Lord Huntingdon, is appointed Inspecting Commander of the Coast Guard at Ardmore, Waterford. Mr. Hull, Chief Officer of Coast Guards, is removed from Miltown Malbay to Brandon station, Kerry, vice Dwyer removed to Castle Townsend. Mr. Hull was the Chief Officer at Robertstown, at the melancholy wreck of the Killarney Steamer, and succeeded in saving Baron Spalisco with all passengers.

Two years' service as First Lieutenant of a sloop of war, or as gunnery Lieutenant, are now counted for one served as first Lieutenant of a rated ship. A carter returning from Roscrea to Birr, had his skull fractured by a lawless mob, on Monday night. At Bruce Petty Sessions, informations were ordered by the Court against Dr. James Dowling, charged with abusive language and assault on Dr. Thomas Holmes in that village, all about a patient. A boatman was drowned at the old weir bridge, Killarney, this week.

Dr. C. Enright is elected to the Newtownsandes Dispensary, Kerry, by a considerable majority over Dr. Quill, the other candidate. A beautiful white pet rabbit of Master Armitage's, Cappa Cottage, county Clare, has eight young ones at one birth, and the mother pulled off the greater part of her wool to cover them.

The Cashel steeple chase is fixed for the 25th inst. John Richards, master of the Venus, from Quebec, is convicted in £160 penalty at Cork, for having contraband tobacco on board.

Nicholas Philpot Leader, Esq. has joined the Kanturk Petty Sessions bench, on appointment to the Commission for the County Cork. Alderman Henry Alcock is appointed locum tenens for the Mayor of Waterford, during his absence in England.

and said, "What a pity it is to see such an exhibition on a Sunday evening; a repetition of this kind of work will injure Kilkee, and I regret it the more, as hitherto the people of this neighbourhood were remarked as being the quietest peasantry in the country," on which Mr. Comyn said, "Peasantry, peasantry, do you hear what he calls ye, boys, peasantry, and used expressions in Irish, which I did not understand, and then commenced an address to the people. Part of the words used by him were—"Why would you presume to call them peasantry—they have better blood in their veins than you have." Mr. Comyn, previous to this, turning to me, said, he was looking for a good butt to make game of—they are not the peasantry. The workhouse they are about building now it is you, and you, and the like of ye, that shall be in them, when they will be outside, pointing to the gentlemen about me. As I observed Mr. Comyn then getting much excited, and not understanding for what purpose the people had assembled I moved away, and remained perfectly silent, when I observed a large gentleman, whose name I did not know, but I have been since informed was O'Donnell, standing at the Post-office door, and I again heard Mr. Comyn address the people in short sentences, at the conclusion of each there was very loud and clamorous shouting, which had reference to the election of Poor Law Guardians, and personal observations to the same Mr. O'Donnell, I heard a gentleman remark, whom I believe to be Mr. Stoney. "Tis a shame to allow such a proceeding to go on on the Sabbath evening; is there no police, or is there no Magistrate here," which expressions were again reiterated by some other person, when Mr. John Browne, a Magistrate of the County, who was standing near me, seemed somewhat annoyed at an observation being made as to the necessity or want of a magistrate, he said "I'm a magistrate, and I am here to preserve the peace when I see occasion require it." Immediately after seeing the people collecting in great numbers, another voice said, surely, the police ought to be sent for; when Mr. Brown stepped forward, and addressed Mr. Comyn, saying (as well as I recollect) "Would you be good enough to disperse those people, not to have anything unpleasant occur," to which Mr. Comyn replied in derision, "They are my force, or my people, and you need not give yourself any trouble about them," upon which the shouting was much increased, and Mr. Browne then stated "I am a Magistrate of this county, and I require all persons to disperse before I proceed to any extremities (or words to that effect.) I wish to observe that previous to Mr. Browne addressing Mr. Comyn at all, the same Mr. O'Donnell was about replying to the remarks made by Mr. Comyn to him and being much irritated, he (Mr. O'Donnell,) used gross and insulting language to Mr. Comyn, which Mr. Comyn retorted in the same strain, and that was the period at which Mr. Brown interfered, announcing that he was a Magistrate, and would command or require the peace to be preserved, and said, "I will take you, Mr. Comyn, a prisoner the very first, if there is a repetition of this work; and if you do not desist" Mr. Comyn replied by saying "I defy you, if you lay a hand upon me I'll put your head and the ground together, the people are my police, and we would take you and your police and ram you either into the black hole or bridewell, and bind or tie you up there." I am positive the words were "bind or tie you there," but forget whether it was black-hole or prison, he said "I would tie you hand and foot, and I despise you and your authority" In a moment or two after the Police appeared, when Mr. Comyn, accompanied by the crowd, paraded up and down two or three turns, and finally they dispersed without any other circumstance that I witnessed, as I immediately retired.

At this stage of the proceedings, the presiding Magistrates appointed Counsellor John O'Hara, their assessor, to decide all legal points that may arise on the enquiry. Mr. Thomas Parker sworn.—Saw Rev. Mr. Comyn and Rev. Mr. Reid, his curate; heard Mr. Brown say to the crowd, "Boys, go home, and don't commit a breach of the peace, or I shall feel it my duty to call out the Police, and have you arrested." Mr. Comyn turned round, and exclaimed, "Who dares say he will arrest you?" Mr. Brown then said, "He was a Magistrate of the County, and if the peace was disturbed, Mr. Comyn would be the first he would arrest. Mr. Comyn answered, that he and his frize coated police would take Mr. Browne, tied neck and heels, and drag that magistrate and his police to gaol. The mob were then very much excited.

Police Constable Irvine deposed that he was one of the party sent for by Mr. Browne to preserve the peace; there was a mob in the street, shouting and waving their hats; heard Mr. Comyn and Mr. O'Donnell arguing, and feared a riot, or breach of the peace. Mr. Comyn was the first who addressed the police, and said "why don't you do your duty?" Mr. Brown closed his case, conceiving he had fully substantiated his report to Government.

The Rev. Thomas Reid was produced for the defence.—Is resident Curate to Mr. Comyn, and lives in his house: Mr. T. O'Donnell and Mr. Comyn are not on speaking terms; saw Mr. O'Donnell approach the Priest, and address him; he said the Priest was a brave man on the altar but not elsewhere, and he called him a foul mouthed scoundrel; there was a crowd about them, who were then disposed to interfere with O'Donnell, and determined to strike him; Mr. Comyn bid the people not to mind him, as he only wished to cause a riot; saw Mr. Browne near the Post-office, the people were cheering, heard him say he was a Magistrate, and would arrest any one violating the peace, "and you too, Sir," pointing to Mr. Comyn, "if you break the peace." The Priest asked who was that, and denied violating the peace, but added, "if you, or any other disturb the peace, I'll take them up and put them in the Police barrack." Mr. Browne then retired; did not see the people insult any gentleman; did not hear a word of dragging neck and heels, or of putting Mr. Browne's head and the ground together.

William S. Tracy, Esq. Stipendiary Magistrate, sworn.—Heard a person in the crowd exclaim "I'd take him by the neck and drag him to gaol, soon as the meanest fellow in the town, that would commit a breach of the peace." I don't know who used the words, but I'm very suspicious, as well as others in this room.

THURSDAY—THIRD DAY. Mr. Matthew Cox sworn.—Saw Mr. O'Donnell rush at Mr. Comyn, and abuse him; heard him call the Priest a foul-mouthed scoundrel, and drunken black-guard; the people were annoyed at the words, but Mr. Comyn bid them not to raise a hand to him; witness did not hear any offensive or threatening words pass between Mr. Comyn and Mr. Browne.

Richard Sheridan, a pensioner, sworn.—Proved the offensive words used to the Priest by O'Donnell; heard one of the crowd say "let me at him to kick

In reference to Mr. Browne's testimony, in first page, we have to explain that the word "row" was not his own, but that of Mr. Reynolds, the querist for Mr. Comyn, who adopted it in the cross examination, and in replying to the interrogatories embracing the term, for elucidation witness was obliged to use it.

Notwithstanding the statement to the contrary in some of the Dublin Papers, we are enabled to say, that the second dividend of the Relief Fund to the Clergy—2s. in the pound—will be made in a very few days. The Attorney-General is preparing to proceed in the Court of Exchequer against all landlords returned in the schedules; and any such who do not pay within a fortnight will be put to heavy expense. John O'Grady, of Islaneady, is appointed to the curacy of Turlough, in place of the Rev. Mr. Cunningham, who receives the curacy of Kilmarn.

Mr. Cornelius O'Brien, M.P. flatly denies the words ascribed to Mr. John M'Namara at the Ennistimon Poor Law meeting, that he (Mr. O'Brien) cursed the ground on which O'Connell stood, and abused the people at Carrigoran before Lord Anglesby, but Mr. O'Brien admits having opposed Mr. O'Connell's first election for Clare in 1828.

Extract of a letter from Kilrush:—"The Poor Law Guardians held their first meeting here on Tuesday, Poole Hickman, Esq. in the Chair, when the National Bank was appointed Treasurer, by a majority of three over the Provincial, although the Rev. Mr. Comyn had used the most strenuous exertions on the other side. Mr. John MacDonnell was appointed Clerk, at £40 per annum salary. The dinner to the liberal guardians took place same evening."

MALLOW UNION.—As previously intimated, a meeting of Guardians took place in Mallow, on Thursday, Lord Viscount Doneraile, who travelled expressly from Paris to be present, took the chair. Mr. Clanchy's motion for rescinding the decision of a former meeting, fixing the site of the Workhouse at Mallow, was submitted for consideration, and was opposed strongly by Mr. Commissioner Voules, and the Guardians of the Mallow side, who moved that the question be not entertained, which being negatived, they moved a second resolution for the adjournment of the meeting, but with the same success, and when the Noble Chairman was about to put the original motion, the greater number of the Southern Guardians left the room, and declined to vote, leaving the question as carried by the majority of the Guardians in favour of Buttevant, being with the Chairman, seventeen out of the thirty-three votes for the whole Union giving a bona fide majority of one. Mr. Clanchy drew up a protest, in the strongest language, to be forwarded to the Commissioners at Somerset House, signed by Lord Doneraile and sixteen other Guardians, and thus the matter stands till the 30th inst. their next day of meeting at Buttevant.

Mr. Leonard Keating, Garranlea, Cashel, holds opinions of Lord Donoughmore, which that gentleman says "I do not think it prudent to express to the Lieutenant of Tipperary and a witness protected by the privileges of the House of Lords." The reason why—Lord Donoughmore objected to his appointment as a Magistrate, which, however, Lord Lismore pressed upon Government, and the appointment was made by the Chancellor, despite of Lord Donoughmore, and this the latter happened to mention before the Lords' committee on the state of Ireland.
