THE PATENT IMPROVED

OLMSTEAD STOVE.

Manufactured in a superior manner by the Proprietors and Patentee, THE PATENT OLMSTED STOVE MA-NUFACTURING COMPANY, Cambridge-street, Crescent, Birmingham; and sold by the Agents, Messrs. Hodges & Sons, 16, Westmoreland-street, Dublin, the principal Ironmongers in the kingdom; and in Limerick, by Mr. JAMES HOGG, George-Street, and by Mr. John Abell.

THIS STOVE is composed of very superior malleable iron, polished; made expressly for the purpose.

It is distinguished as much by the elegance of its exterior, as it is by the excellence of its interior con-struction, in which is contained every means to promote comfort, a safety, and economy. A smaller quantity of the lighting requisite to produce a very agreeable temperature, that may be regulated to any degree, is a desideratum unattainable in any other description of Stoves.

It is peculiar in its form from all other Stoves, and remarkably well adapted for Cathedrals, Churches, Chapels, Mansions, or other large Buildings. Its particular adaptation for these purposes has been attested in several years past, by the approbation of the Clergy, Ministers, Nobility, Gentry, and Directors of Public Institutions.

Its efficiency has also been proved by Heads of Universities, Schools, Infirmaries, Parish Workhouses, public Prisons, and in Manufactories, Show Rooms, Entrance Halls, Stair Cases, Offices, Green Houses, Harness Rooms, &c. and a variety of other localities where a pure, effectual, diffusive, and agreeable warmth may be attained.

The external form of the Stoves can be varied, according to the Gothic or any other architectural style, to comport with the taste of purchasers; by which their utility would not in the least degree be deteriorated.

The sizes of the Stoves being various are made suitable for whatever extent is required to be warmed .-By an explanation of the length, breadth, and height of the space, the size wanted will be at once determined. 2
