

Limerick Chronicle.
 September 7th, 1842.
 On this date I find a paragraph of Miss Beckett at Birr," of a force of bridal dresses, by which she is represented as a kind friend. On behalf of my honour of relationship, to give greater effect to may be allowed to add and final change of faith is not regret to her family my servant,

HENRY BECKETT.

W. N. ELMES, CLK.
 I am informed that you, as a member of the absence of the Rector (of the parish) attended the funeral of Mr. B. Fitzgerald, ship which has been a Protestant, and a member up to a short time previously, whose brother is a Protestant in America; and administering according to the rites of the Roman understanding also, that you made some declaration of a professional man who visited me to the faith in which he was surprised to observe his case on last Sunday week, by the whole Clergymen, and also in the column of the Limerick reference to the deceased, shortly before his death considering the rites of the Roman fact having, as it is rumoured, announced from the altars of the City—Under all these circumstances justified in thus publicly stating the gentleman alluded to, a respected brother of the same rank and simple statement of this extraordinary transaction within your and his knowledge may be set right upon the letter to you through the CHRONICLE, whose Editor will permit its insertion, and be equally satisfied that of the other gentleman in my reply.—I remain, Rev. your obedient
 W. N. ELMES.
