

ily are sojour-
 dowed with visi-
 g the summer.
 at Brighton.
 n behalf of the
 urch Education
 t. in the Church
 are.
 rd preaches at
 chial Schools.
 has returned to Kilkee for the
 of the Dutch
 ning in company
 ide carried him
 nately drowned.
 sisted by a large
 s Wray, step-
 erick Reporter,
 at the Convent
 The ceremony
 steem in which
 erous and highly
 om were several
 vy, M.D.F.R.S.
 ell. The youth-
 most fashionably
 eanour bespoke
 the ceremony,
 o the questions
 t, with firmness,
 of the Convent
 was excellent
 was such as to
 ls of those who tchelstown, has
 ork, to enable
 ding schools in
 y acknowledge
 e, towards the
 property of the
 sioned.
 of the Kilkee
 tained by Mr.
 tect, at a sum
 those who are
 e letter signed
 eorge-street.

An accident of a most melancholy nature occurred in this City, on Wednesday evening. Mr. William Hartigan, a shop-keeper of Kilrush, and owner of a boat at present lying at our quays, was observed by the watchman on duty, and other persons in Henry-street, on the above evening; there was, however, nothing in his manner or appearance to arrest particular attention, and it was not until a great coat was perceived lying on the ground near Lord Limerick's residence, that suspicion was aroused. On looking over the area the man was discovered at the bottom, with his skull fractured, and quite dead. An inquest was held on Thursday, but it did not appear how the accident occurred, or whether deceased was in a state of intoxication, or not.

The melancholy effects of intemperate habits were manifested in an awful manner in this City on Thursday morning. The wife of a pensioner from the 93d, named McCoy, was found dead at her residence in the Englishtown; and on the inquisition made before the Mayor it appeared that the husband had drawn his quarter's pension the previous day, and that both had retired to bed deeply intoxicated; there were several marks on the deceased, supposed to be the effects of a fall—the jury found accordingly. Despite the onward march of Temperance principles in this country, a few solitary cases like the above will sometimes occur—and though they may, and must be regretted as hereavements to a particular circle, and as involving the eternal happiness of the unfortunate victims, they must not on that account be considered as without an end or an atonement. Such will serve more clearly to shew our countrymen the incubas they have shaken off, and the pestilence they have avoided, and afford a practical illustration of the axiom—"There is no good without a partial injury."

On Tuesday night, Sub-Inspector Egar, and a party from Tipperary police station, proceeded, in consequence of information received of an intended attack, to the house of a farmer, named Looby, at Ardvinolane. Mr. Egar concealed four of his party in the house, and the remainder, three in number, outside. In a short time, five fellows with their faces blackened, and well armed, came to the house. They tried various pretences in order to induce Looby to open the door, they first said they were the police, then they were strangers, and wanted a drink of water, but all to no purpose, Looby refused them admittance. They then broke open the door and windows and three of them entered, and made a savage attack on Looby, but they were promptly met by the police, and after a desperate struggle they were overpowered and their arms taken from them, without a shot being fired. One of the fellows who remained outside was also captured, but the other escaped. The arms they had, were a handsome double-barrelled fowling-piece, a blunderbuss, and a cavalry pistol. The gun was

Ex-officio Guardians of Tullamore; Charles Armstrong, Kilclare; Charles Francis Berry, Tullamore; Arthur Moore; Roger North, Kilduffe; John Han; J. W. Tarleton, Killeigh; John Duffe, Esqrs.

There never was such a large quantity of goods at present stored in Liverpool. Several of the Master-Bankers have suspended night work, from to-morrow evening.

BIRTHS

- On Monday, the 17th inst. at Tipperary, George Purdon, Esq. of a son.
- At Rathcoursey Cottage, Middleton, Richard G. Meredith, of a daughter.
- At Altavilla, Cove, the Lady of D. O'Connell, of a son.
- At Tynan Abbey, the seat of her father, Bart. the Lady of Thomas Vesey Nugent, of a son.
- At Holy Cross, county Tipperary, Reid, Esq. officer of Excise, of a son.
- In Cork, the Lady of James John O'Connell, of a son.
- At Muff Glebe, Cookstown, the Lady of J. W. Tarleton, of a daughter.
- In Lower Gardiner-street, the Lady of J. W. Tarleton, of a son.
- In Tralee, Mrs. Lumsden, of a son.
- The Lady of John Edward O'Donoghue, Kildare, Esq. of a son, still-born.
- At Roundstone, Western Coast, county Mayo, the Rev. William Crotty, of a son.
- The Lady of John Richards, Esq. B. of a son and heir.
- In London, the Lady of Kenyon S. O'Connell, of a son.
- At Ivy House, Stranraer, the Lady of J. W. Tarleton, of twin sons.
- In London, the Lady of Major Hurdis, of a daughter.
- At Jamaica, the Lady of Thomas R. O'Connell, of a son.
- At the Abbey House, Cahir, the Lady of J. W. Tarleton, Esq. of a son.
- In Waterford, the Lady of Captain J. W. Tarleton, of a son.
- At Spawell House, county Wexford, the Rev. Nicholas Scallan, Esq. the Lady of J. W. Tarleton, of a son.
- At the Glebe, Omeath, the Lady of J. W. Tarleton, of a son.
- In Waterford, the Lady of Dr. M. O'Connell, of a son.
- The Lady of Surgeon Smyly, of a son.
- At Seville-place, the Lady of Lieut. J. W. Tarleton, of a daughter.
- At Dinapore, Bengal, the Lady of J. W. Tarleton, of twin daughters.
- At Mussoorie, Bengal, the Lady of J. W. Tarleton, of a son.

MARRIAGES

- In Monkstown Church, Charles L. O'Connell, the late John Bateman, Esq. of Ballinacorney, and Isabella, daughter of James Jackson, Esq. of Dublin.
- At Kenmare, Mr. Richard M. Bean, to Avisia, only daughter of James Kenmare, county Kerry.
- Sampson Jervoise, Esq. Droum N. to Miss Frances O'Hea, Leap.
- In St. George's Church, Urquhart, Kate, daughter of the late William C. O'Connell, to Elizabeth, daughter of John Cumming, Esq. of Naples, to Elizabeth Macaulay, Esq. of Glen Oak, Crumlin.