DEATHS.

On Sunday last, in Dublin, where he had been for the advice of Sir P. Crampton, Sampson Beamish, Esq. of Kilmaloda House, county Cork—a gentleman whose many virtues, agreeable deportment, and kind hospitality, endeared him to a highly respectable circle of relatives and friends. His loss will be long deplored by his numerous tenantry, and the peasantry of his neighbourhood, to whom he gave constant employment. His remains were conveyed to the family vault at Kilmaloda, on Tuesday. Mr. Beamish departed in the fullness of time. He was married to Catherine, daughter, of the Rev. Thomas Waller Evans.
 At Ballinacloy Castle, county Tipperary, in the prime of life, James Dalton, Esq.—a young gentleman universally regretted for his many amiable qualities, and whose untimely demise is deplored by a large circle of sorrowing friends.
