At Albany Chapel, Regent's-park, Mr. C. Cadby, pianofortemanufacturer, of London, to Valentia Mary Cooke, of Wharton-street, Lloyd-square, Islington.

DEATHS.

At his house, Roche's-street, on Monday evening last, John Wight, Esq. formerly an eminent Solicitor in this city. During a long life he maintained a high character for integrity, but as he descended into the vale of years, was tinctured by rather eccentric habits, growing out of a rigid, if not mistaken, frugality. [It was this gentleman from whom the £1,000 was stolen, as advertised in the Chronicle.]

At Ardmoyle Glebe, aged five years and a half, Susan, third daughter of the Rev. John G. Phillips.

Quite suddenly, at Newmarket-on-Fergus, on Sunday, James Healy, Esq. formerly of the Clare Hotel, Bridge-street—an honest upright man, and whose death is very generally lamented by a large circle of friends and acquaintances.

At Harvest Lodge, Eliza, wife of Thomas Johnston Stoney, Esq. and daughter of the late Richard Going, of Birdhill, Esq. county Tipperary.

In Bandon, at an advanced age, Regina, relict of the late Thos.
Popham, Esq. of Clonwhelan, county Longford.

At Bushy Park, Thomas Henry, only child of Robert John Martin, Esq.

Corporal Birrane, 21st Fusileers, on the recruiting service in this garrison.

Walter George, youngest son of the late Bernard Shaw, of Dublin, Esq.

At Nottingham, aged 81, Charlotte, relict of Lieut.-Colonel John Edwards, late of Old Court, county Wicklow.

At Bettystown, near Drogheda, Mary Ann, wife of Commander
John Adams, R.N.

John Crotty, Esq. of Dublin, nephew of the late Cornelius Crotty, of Newlands, county Dublin.

James P. Comyn, Esq. of Ballinderry, county Roscommon, brother of the late Clerk of the Crown for that county.

At Kildare-street, Miss Elizabeth Ewing, sister of the late George Ewing, Esq. of Primrose Hill, Kingstown.

At his residence, Market-street, James David Mahony.

In Knox's-street, Sligo, Mr. Robert M'Kim.

At Falmouth, the lady of J. James, Esq. R.N. Her husband returned the previous evening from Gibraltar, as Lieutenant in charge of the mails, on board the Royal Tar; he was too late to be recognised by her, as she was insensible.

Mrs. Ellen Sewel, widow of the late Thomas Sewel, Esq. of the Excise, and eldest daughter of the late Captain Joyce, of the 5th Dragoon Guards.

In London, of quinsey, aged 51, R. H. Farmer, eldest son of the late Lieut.-General Farmer, R.M.

At Kennington, the wife of Commander Grant Allan, R.N.

At Stratton Park, Grants, Miss Wilhelmina Charlotte Maitland, daughter of the late Colonel Maitland, of Edinburgh.

In Navy-row, Devonport, Thomas Coxworthy, Esq. aged 78.

At Morton Bank, aged 75, the Very Rev. William Routhledge, Dean of the diocese

At Eaton-place, London, Charlotte, widow of the late Robert Myddelton Biddulph, Esq. of Chirk Castle, Denbigshire.

At Palace-street, Canterbury, aged 83, Thomas Ridout, Esq.
Surgeon.

At Greenock, John Mennois, Esq. Editor of the Greenock Advertiser.

At his residence, Nile-street, David Bruce, Esq. R.N. second son of the late Rev. David Bruce, first minister of Newington Chapel, Renshaw-street.

In Queen-street, Mrs. Miller, wife of Lieut. Gavin Miller, of the Derby Militia.

At Gourock, Mr. George Easton, farmer and spirit-dealer. The deceased was among the tallest men in Scotland, his height being six feet seven inches and a half.

At Exeter, the Rev. Henry Acton, Unitarian Minister.

At Glanville-street, Devonport, James Dumble Henwood, Esq.
M.D. of Helston, Cornwall.

At Torloisk, Island of Mull, Mrs. D. Maclean Clephane, widow of the late General L. Clephane, and mother-in-law of the Marquis of Northampton.

At his residence, Hiracl, Bangor, Capt. Thomas Lewis, aged 67.

At Edinburgh, Agnes, daughter of the late Mr. David Auld, Inverkeithing, Fifeshire, and wife of Mr. John Forster Fraser, Editor of the Ayr Observer.
