A court martial was held at Jamaica on board H.M.S. Imaum, for the trial of Lieut. Phillips, of H.M. brig Ringdove, for being absent from his watch on deck; for coming on the quarter deck when under arrest smoking a cigar; for refusing to go below when ordered, and threatening violence to the marines, who were ordered to remove him; and lastly, a general charge of disrespect. The prisoner pleaded guilty. The sentence of the court was that Lieut. Phillips should be reprimanded, removed from his ship, and placed at the bottom of the list.

The Bromo, Dutch Government Steamer, Captain Vat den Broecke, has arrived at Falmouth. This splendid frigate-rigged ship, is 1200 tons burden, and the largest in the Dutch navy. The Bromo is armed with eight guns, two of which are long 80 pounders on pivots, and manned with a crew of 130 officers and men; has a large amount of presents on board from the Sovereign of the Netherlands to the Emperor of Japan. She put in for coals and water.

His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant has been pleased to appoint Captain Jenkins, County Inspector of Down, to be Resident Magistrate for that County, in the room of Hill Wilson Rowan, Esq. who has retired, Captain Jenkins was the oldest County Inspector in Ireland.

Sub-Inspector Cary, at Bruff, succeeded with a party of police, in arresting three persons from Hospitle and Kiltely, named James Slattery, John Brien and Thomas M'Carthy, charged as being of the party who attacked and robbed the Cork and Charleville butchers, on their way to the fair of Kiltely.

On Thursday evening, the remains of the late Mrs. Butler, of Fitzwilliam-street, Dublin, widow of the Rev. William Butler, of Doon, Broadford, arrived here in a funeral carriage, with six horses, for interment in the family vault at Six-mile-bridge. The melancholy cavalcade was accompanied by Henry Butler, Esq. brother-in-law of the deceased lady, and proceeded yesterday morning, attended by a great number of private equipages from this city, and the county of Clare, and a concourse of the tenantry on foot and horseback, who all assembled to pay the last tribute of respect to that excellent and highly respectable family, the Butlers, of Castlecrine.

The Mayor of Cork, Mr. Fagan, entertained to dinner this week the Lord Chief Baron, the Right Rev. Doctor Murphy, the High Sheriff, Sir Edward Synge; E. B. Roche, M.P.; D. Callaghan, M.P.; Sir W. Becher, Sir George Goid, Colonel Yorke, Mr. Whiteside, and a large party of the Munster Bar.

Timothy Mahony is sentenced to be hanged at Cork on Tuesday next, for a triple murder—that of his sister-in-law, her infant, and a servant girl!
