

underplot, by affixing his signature as chairman to resolutions, in embryo, quite at variance with the legitimate duty of his office. We congratulate Mr. Sleeman on the escape he had from such artifice. The firm and judicious stand of this responsible officer will save him from becoming the victim of a violent and disappointed party. He has proved himself worthy of the high trust reposed in him by Government, as an officer of the Crown; and it is a remarkable, and equally gratifying fact, that not one High Sheriff in Ireland, Whig or Tory, Radical or Conservative, has convened his county for the wild scheme of agitating Repeal, and sowing discontent.

Now we can state a certainty of the character of this requisition that half the number are not electors of this county, and that some of the parties whose names appear, never saw it! Yet though it is possible, but not likely, they may have signed it notwithstanding, there are others beside on the list who never attached their signatures to it!! This fact we are prepared to establish on due inquiry. The value and authenticity of the Repeal requisition may be inferred from this simple circumstance.

CAPTURE OF A ROYAL FISH.—Yesterday morning, about six o'clock, while drawing for salmon near Palmer's Creek, below Barrington's-quay, two of the Abbey fishermen, named Lyddy, caught a splendid Sturgeon in their net, measuring eight feet in length, four feet in circumference, and weighing 2½ cwt. When first the fish got entangled in the net it struggled a little; but, when the fishermen endeavoured to draw it in (not knowing what it was), it plunged most violently, so as to force their coats under water. Luckily, other fishermen came up just as they were about relinquishing the prisoner, and by their united exertions, after getting a few dips in the attempt, succeeded in bringing it ashore, not however without considerable difficulty. Shortly after the sturgeon was conveyed to Mr. Francis P. Russell's store, in Saint Francis's Abbey, where it remained for the day an object of curiosity to thousands who flocked to see it. The Sturgeon, in colour, is rather darker than a salmon, though similarly formed and spotted; it has no sign of mouth, and sustains itself by suction, through an opening under the neck, the head being small in proportion to the size. The Mayor approved of sending it as a present to Daniel O'Connell, and it was last evening paraded through the streets upon a door on men's shoulders, with a temporary deal case before it, exactly in the form of a coffin, in which the dead Sturgeon, was nailed up, and forwarded this morning, on the roof of the Day-coach, to Richmond bridewell. Breathe not to "ears polite," the proper name of this monstrous present, when it shall arrive in the metropolis! The strange visitor will not be admissible to the prison before one o'clock on Monday, and, in this sultry weather, four days must greatly alter the constitution of its huge bulk.

John Galligan, alias Connors was sentenced to one month's imprisonment, under the Mutiny Act, for obtaining money under false pretences, by enlisting with two corporals of the 21st Regt. In about an hour after he received the shilling from one he imposed on the other, subsequently admitting to both that he was drummed out of the 37th Regt. When arrested by Constable Ievers, of the City Police, he had the impudence to say it was only the day before he was drummed out of the 15th Regt. in this garrison, for wearing a "Repeal button"!! Information was ordered against David Molony for stealing wool, the property of Henry M'Mahon; against Mary Neill and Mary Fitzgerald, for stealing a quantity of cabbage by night, from the garden of Michael Shields, old Clare-street. James Kelly, apprentice of Patrick Kelly, victualler, was sentenced to one week's imprisonment, for absconding himself from business. Margaret O'Neill summoned her husband, John O'Neill, for assault and ill-treatment on several occasions. From the evidence it appeared that O'Neill not only behaved cruelly towards his wife, but had chastised his children (one a babe of 12 months) in a brutal manner. Being a man of violent temper, the Magistrates ordered him to be kept in custody until he gave bail to keep the peace. Informations ordered against Pat. Shea and Cornelius Callaghan, assault and rescuing goods seized under decree. Mr. David Boyd, Inspector of St. Michael's parish night watch, attends at petty sessions to assist all cases in which the men under his charge may be concerned, a precaution very requisite, as heretofore watchmen were found to be in general reluctant witnesses.

Lord Clonbrock was admitted a brother of St. John's Lodge, Athlone, on Monday last.

The fame of Masonry is transcendent in every age and clime of the civilized world, and this glorious pre-eminence of the Order is based upon its well known principles of "faith, hope and charity—peace, love and harmony"—embracing the precept of universal benevolence, irrespective of party, sect or politics—the obligation of inviolable fidelity and loyalty, combined with the purest spirit of fraternal affection. These are the primitive elements of Masonry, by which the Brotherhood have safely steered their precious ark through the seas and storms of centuries, exposed to calumny and persecution; but the high character of the Craft has surmounted every difficulty, and never probably stood in so flourishing a position as at present. The prosperity of this ancient and honorable Order still provokes occasional attacks from the unenlightened and envious. A triumphant vindication of the Society, by Milo Burke O'Ryan, Master of Lodge 206, Dublin, and dedicated to M. Furnell, D.L. Grand Master of North Munster, has just issued from the press. This noble defence by a zealous and talented Brother, must effectually overwhelm the enemies, lay or clerical, who yet persist in their attempts to injure the "ancient and honorable" society of "free and accepted Masons"

We have received lamentable accounts of the state of destitution in which the fishermen of the rivers Nore, Suir, and Barrow are placed by the working of the new bill. All the illegal weirs are standing, besides all the new legal ones, so that the fishermen are absolutely pauperised. Either the act must be carried out by the Government, or repealed, or there will be horrible scenes enacted.—Mail.—[We may, with great truth, add to the statement of our influential cotemporary, that the fishery of the Shannon is in an equally ruinous state, for the nuisance of standing weirs at both sides of the river, is most destructive, and has literally spoiled both rod and net fishing. The inefficient operation of the late act has done more injury to the fisheries of Ireland, and to the many industrious persons concerned therein, than any statute that ever was passed for the regulation of those fisheries.]

The plaintiff was Mr. John Hawkes, of Kilkree—the defendant Mr. Samuel Devonsher Penrose, and the victim of frailty, Miss Fanny Nettles, of Nettleville, who had become wife of her neighbour, Mr. Hawkes, and subsequently the chere amie of defendant, her husband's neighbour, and cousin! The issue of their marriage was three children. The husband, with £1000 a-year income, was very fond of the sports of the field, and his wife equally so; according to the evidence, she would ride after the hounds, and stop at nothing! Judgment went by default—£2,000 damages and 6d. costs.
