On seeing this statement, the friends of the society considered it their duty to obtain an authoritative contradiction of what they knew to be an unjust charge; accordingly at every meeting held since the paper came into my hands, I read the whole charge to the chairman, and placed the document before him, and fully purposed adopting the same course at all succeeding meetings. The public have seen in your columns the disclaimers, the indignant disclaimers of the noblemen and gentlemen who being resident in Ireland know well how the society has been worked, and the blessing which has been vouchsafed to our labors by Divine Providence. I am sure the other chairmen of the respective districts will bear similar testimony. But Mr. Kelly asserts that he has proved his charge. To do so fairly he should have adduced instances in which those expressions were used, antecedent to his refusal, at meetings of the Protestant Orphan Society. This he does not even attempt; on the contrary the only quotations given are from addresses delivered subsequently to that period, as appears on the face of his own letter, not regarding the palpable absurdity of assigning as reasons for his conduct in 1841 events that occurred in the following years. But, 'tho' by this extraordinary process the whole period of eleven was open to him, during which above 100 public meetings were held, Mr. KELLY has been unable to produce a single instance in which any of those epithets was used; and the only fair attempt at proof consists in the phrase uttered March 31st, 1843, (nearly two years after) by a layman who publicly disclaimed at the time its application by him to the Church of Rome. Mr. KELLY, having failed in his researches as regards the Protestant Orphan Society, is obliged to have recourse to meetings of other institutions to trump up a charge which does not lie against our society. So that if the Chairman, or any any advocate of the Irish Orphan Society, ever times, shown an interest in the poor Protestant Orphans, and a layman from Dublin speaks strongly of the persecuting character of the church from which he had been recently delivered, Mr. KELLY sets down every indignant expression against the poor Protestant Orphans. Nay, more, I grieve to add he permits himself to become the vehicle of private slander to make out a case. In this instance too his kind but credulous disposition has been imposed upon, complaints were made to me that a R. C. Priest publicly rebuked those generous Romanists who have voluntarily subscribed to our funds. But I should be sorry to name any person on hearsay evidence. Tho' Mr. KELLY has taken so wide and so low a range yet he has not been able to show a single occasion on which we termed Romanists "damnable, idolatrous, spawn of Antichrist, a demon Priesthood, surpliced ruffians, &c." I never heard those terms so applied—I never so applied them myself. Some of them I never even heard of, and will be obliged by Mr. KELLY's stating in what "dictionary" they may be found. They are not in Johnson! But let me not be mistaken, while, as Secretary of the Protestant Orphan Society, I disclaim politics, polemics and proselytism, with which our charity has nothing whatever to do, I dare not renounce my right, or abandon my duty, as a faithful and honest Clergyman of the Church of England, at proper times, and by legitimate means, to persuade all I can to leave a communion in which their souls' salvation is in imminent peril; and to enter a Church which offers them all the means of grace, as ordained by Christ himself, 'without money, and without price.' This I have done, and will do, while I live, the Lord being my helper, fearlessly, temperately, and unceasingly. On the occasion referred to by Mr. KELLY, which occurred eight years ago, and before I was connected with this Society, I was lawfully called on to repel, with a few others, the attacks made upon our communion by a R.C. Clergyman, Dr. Butler, who stated, in our presence, that he and Dr. Wiseman, were Chamberlains of the Pope, and were sent by him, one to England, the other to Ireland, to detach Protestants from our Church. We entered his Chapel, took down his sermons, and confuted them from the pulpits of the Cathedral and George's church. The result was his disappearance not only from Limerick, selected as a weak point, but from Ireland. And perhaps the hard knocks I gave their system there, as well as my unwearied efforts since to strengthen our own walls, have procured for me the unrelenting hostility, thro' any persons who ignorant of my motives and character become their tools, of the parties most interested in our weakness and their own strength. I deeply regret that so respectable and well-meaning a gentleman as Mr. Kelly, has been again imposed upon. I heartily pray God to deliver him and all my beloved fellow-countrymen from a bondage which neither we, nor our forefathers were able to bear, and enable all sincere patriots to know and feel the truth of the well-known lines of our Christian Poet:— "He is a free-man whom the truth makes free, And all are slaves besides."

I have the honour to be, Sir, Your obedient servant, GODFREY MASSY.

society, to be injured by any imputations. (loud cheers.) I do not know Mr. Kelly, and yet I feel assured, that when he shall have read the disclaimers, the indignant disclaimers, of the patrons of the society, he will feel constrained as a man and a gentleman to retract those observations." The noble Lord, having passed a warm eulogium on the strenuous exertions of the clergy in stimulating the laity to interest themselves zealously in behalf of the orphan and the widow, sat down amidst reiterated applause."

And requests to know from the Earl of Clare if the observations stated to have been used by him in that paragraph, have been correctly reported.

To the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Clare.

Mountshannon, August 9th, 1844. SIR—On my return home this afternoon I had the honour to find on my table your note of the 6th of this month, enclosing a paragraph from the Limerick Chronicle, and requesting to know whether what I stated at the meeting referred to was correctly reported. In reply, I lost no time in stating that the first part is not quite correctly reported. I stated in reply to the appeal made to me by Mr. Massy, that such expressions as you were reported to have used, had I conceived fallen hastily and unadvisedly from a gentleman who had filled the office of High Sheriff of the County, and was now one of the Representatives of the City of Limerick, and that I felt sure he would on reflection feel sorry for having used them. I do not say that he must be a respectable man. The substance of what I said respecting the gentlemen who had heard address the meetings is correctly stated. The concluding part is not quite correctly reported. I stated I had not the pleasure to know Mr. Kelly, but that I felt sure he would feel bound when he heard the indignant disclaimers of so many members of the society, as a man, and a gentleman, to recall the imputations on the society. I have stated as well as I can recollect the substance of what I said.

I have the honour to be, Sir, your obedient humble servant, CLARE.

To James Kelly, Esq.

Erina House, 11th August, 1844.

My LORD—I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your favour of Friday evening, correcting some not unimportant errors in the speech attributed to you in the Chronicle of 3d. of August. It is not unusual (as has occurred in the case of your Lordship's speech) to find public men misrepesented; it is possible, therefore, that in the "appeal" made to your Lordship I also may have been misrepresented; as such may have occurred, I beg to call your Lordship's attention to my speech as reported in the accompanying newspaper, and also to a letter of mine published in yesterday's Chronicle, stating what I did say on the occasion, as well as my justification for it; and request to be informed whether after a full consideration of the true state of the matter, you still adhere to the language used, and the call made upon me in your speech as corrected by yourself, as I feel you have had recourse to a mode of treating the subject, which the circumstances of the case do not warrant you in adopting.

I have the honour to be, your obedient servant, JAMES KELLY.

Right Hon. the Earl of Clare.

Mountshannon, August 11, 1844.

Str—Having read your letter in the Limerick Chronicle of yesterday, I was about to write to you, when I had the honor to receive your note, and the newspaper sent with it. I cannot hesitate a moment in stating to you that if you believed the reports of the speeches as quoted by you from the newspapers, to be correct, you did not either hastily or unadvisedly lay to the charge of those speakers expressions, which, I trust, they never used, and which I hope they will prove to you, and to the public, were never used by them; and further I am bound to state that until they shall be disproved you are not bound to recall what you said respecting those expressions. I am happy that your attention was called to what I said at the late meeting in Castle-Connell, for it has induced you to quote the names, which I never saw before, and the reports of the speeches, and when delivered, on which you felt it to be your duty to animadvert.

I need hardly assure you that I cannot too strongly condemn such expressions; that I never heard any such language used at any meeting at which I was present, nor that any attack had ever been made on the religion of my Roman Catholic fellow-countrymen, nor an offensive word used against any member of that church at any meeting of the Protestant Orphan Society.

I have the honor to be, Sir, your obedient and humble servant, CLARE.

James Kelly, Esq.

Erina House, August 12th, 1844.

My LORD—I have had the honor to receive your favor of yesterday.

I cannot but admire the anxious caution with which you hesitate to condemn those Reverend supporters of the Protestant Orphan Society, whose words I quoted in my letter to the Chronicle, extracted from speeches long made, and never contradicted; but while I reverence this extra judicial deliberation, I cannot but regret that some of the same spirit was not exercised by you, ere you hastened to lecture one whose reasons were unknown to you as his person, and who being absent was prevented from correcting you on the spot. It is to be deplored too that a person occupying the position your Lordship does, and taking prominent parts, (were it but at Protestant Orphan meetings,) should be almost the only individual in your county entirely ignorant of the fact, that if there was anything for which many of those who took a lead in this society were more conspicuous than another, it was for their gross and unmeasured abuse of the Catholic religion and Priesthood. For this they have been long noted—with this I taxed them in 1841—for this in my capacity as High Sheriff I refused them the use of the Bruff Court-house. I may be permitted to say this was worth your lordship's enquiring into under any circumstances, most unquestionably before you attacked an absent individual; even now, though late, I invite your Lordship's attention to it. It is time for men like you to be above taking a one-sided view of any question; investigate then these men's speeches, review their acts, and if your professions of respect for your "Catholic Fellow-countrymen" be not mere "sweet words," withdraw from their society the weight, and sanction of your name, for believe me, in men of rank and influence turning their backs upon such Peace Destroyers and sowers of dissention, there is more real practical Christian charity than in all the Protestant Orphan, and other exclusive Societies in Ireland.

I have the honour to be, my Lord, your obedient servant, JAMES KELLY.

To the Right Hon. the Earl of Clare.

P.S.—As this correspondence refers to matters already in the possession of the public, I shall send it to the Papers.

CONTRACT FOR SALT BEEF AND PORK.

Department of the Comptroller for Victualling and Transport Services.

Somerset-place, August 6, 1844.

The Commissioners for executing the office of Lord High Admiral of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland do hereby give notice, that on THURSDAY, the 26th of September next, at One o'clock, they will be ready to treat with such persons as may be willing to CONTRACT for the supply of a quantity of

SALT MEAT,

of the cure of the United Kingdom, equal to 3,000 Navy Tierces of Beef, and 11,000 Navy Tierces of Pork (in separate Tenders), all to be cured in the ensuing season, the Lordship's reserving to themselves the power, when the Tenders are opened, of contracting either for the whole, or for such part thereof only as they may deem fit, or of not contracting for any part.

One-Half of the Beef, and Five-Sixths of the Pork, to be delivered in Tierces, and the remainder in Barrels, into her Majesty's Victualling Stores at Deptford, Portsmouth, Plymouth, and Faulbowline, in such proportions, as shall hereafter be directed, and within the following periods:—

BEEF. Two-thirds } On or before the { 31st March } 1845 One-third } { 31st May }

PORK. One-third } On or before the { 31st March } 1845 Two-thirds } { 31st May } and to be paid for by bill payable at sight, but not during the time period of delivery, for any quantities beyond those specified.

The Conditions of the Contract may be seen at this Office, or by applying to the Agent for the Victualling at Cork, or to the Collectors of her Majesty's Customs at Limerick, Belfast, Waterford, and Newry, or to the Secretary of the Postmaster-General at Dublin, or to the Resident Agent for Transport at Leith.

No tender for a less quantity than shall be equal to 300 Tierces of Beef, or to 300 Tierces of Pork, will be admitted; but all Tenders for such small quantities will be accepted, if at a lower price than that for which larger quantities are offered.

No Tender will be received after One o'clock on the day of treaty, nor any noticed unless the party attends, or some person on his behalf, duly authorised in writing; and it is to be expressly understood that the Tenders must contain a separate price for the Beef, and a separate price for the Pork; and that every Tender must also specify the prices both in figures and words at length, or the Tenders will be rejected.

Every Tender must be addressed to the Secretary of the Admiralty, and bear in the left-hand corner of the envelope the words "Tender for Salt Meat," and "Comptroller for Victualling," and must also be delivered at Somerset-place, and be accompanied by a letter signed by two responsible persons, engaging to become bound with the person tendering, in a sum equal to £25 per cent. on the amount of the Contract, for the due performance of the same.
