

the various classes and sections, of Killerley; Watson, of Keyler; Dudgeon, Archbold, Coberts, &c. of the Bakewell breed, five years the first prize, as being the first in its class got the first-class prize for the show of horses, sheep, swine, poultry, &c. His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant accompanied by his Aids-de-camp and the Judges, who accompanied him to the gardens. His Excellency was greatly pleased with the exhibition, and took notice of the prize bull, the owner of which was Mr. Currowes, Esq. of Gillown, Kilcullen. The second prize was the one which was first at the last Great Agricultural Show. The council dinner was given in the Rotundo. The Marquess of Ely sat as Chairman, supported on the right by the Mayor and on the left by the Duke of Devonshire.

Yesterday, 100 guineas was paid for the first prize bull, and 300 guineas for the first prize sheep. The Prince Albert's immense stand about 2s. 6d. per lb. Mr. Currowes' premium for his model school. The demand for roofing was in much demand.

John Hewitt, of Mary-street, was committed to prison yesterday last before the magistrates at Swords, in the penalty of £2 10s. for imprisonment, for assaulting Paul Currowes, of the Dublin and Drogheda Railway, in the discharge of his duty. Mr. Richard D. Kane, Solicitor-General, attended on behalf of the Government.

NOTICE.—The meeting of this body on Monday next is noted for three remarkable circumstances:—the appearance in the chair of Mr. Currowes, the anti-Repeal member of the Jury, who, with one exception, found guilty the Government against Mr. O'Connell, and the martyr; secondly, the postponement of the meeting of the National Convention to the next session of the Parliament; and thirdly, a fall in the price of the stock from its last quotation. The people of this year was to be the last year—it is the year of time—they are to be the year of time—they are to be the year of time. Let them "seize time by the forelock" and examine the prospects he holds out, and they will find it is time to stop.—Mail.

Mr. Currowes and John Thomas, of the London and Dublin Agricultural Society annual show, were committed this week for robbing Mr. C. Currowes' bachelor's-walk.

aunt, Mrs. O'Leary, on the Roxboro' road, to the Lunatic Asylum, they were met by four men, unknown, one of whom was armed, who seized on Miss Cussen, and dragged her down the avenue leading to the Cork road, where two covered cars were in waiting, in one of which a gentleman in a top hat and a long coat, whose appearance was observed. The victim of this audacious outrage screamed violently when torn from the grasp of her aunt, but with violent exertion was thrust into the car in which the gentleman was, when another struggle ensued, and she succeeded in getting out, but was again dragged into the vehicle, and the assistants having mounted the second car, the party drove off rapidly on the Cork road with their prize. There were a few persons attracted to the spot, one of whom seized the horse's head, but was obliged to let go when a pistol was presented at him. The aunt of the young lady went at once in a state of mind almost frantic to the Police-office, and gave information of the outrage. Sub-Inspector Williams lost no time in directing a pursuit, by mounted policemen, but to no effect. The relative of a Town Councillor of this city is suspected of being the principal in this unmanly outrage. Miss Cussen is supposed to have a handsome fortune, which may account for the abduction, and the Police are yet on the inquiry.

Francis Pitcairn, a child of seven years, was accidentally crushed to death at Merchant's-quay, on Thursday evening, by a beam of timber, used by pump-borers, having fallen on him, while amusing himself with his play-fellows, who were at either end of the beam. He was conveyed to Barrington's hospital, where it was ascertained that rupture of the heart had taken place.

An atrocious ruffian, who attend the Denmark-street meat market as basket boy, yesterday seized a poor dog, near one of the stalls, and clutching a butchers knife from the block, literally cut the head off the unoffending brute! This is something more than the criminal offence, 'cruelty to animals,' and deserves public execration. The respectable victuallers of that market must know the ferocious miscreant, and the citizens will be anxious to know how they resent this horrid deed.

William Hare was committed to the county gaol on Sunday, by George Furnell, Esq., for having been one of the armed party who attacked the dwelling house of Mr. Patrick Morressy, of Ballyregan, on the 23d June, 1843, and compelled Morressy to give them money to buy powder and ball. This fellow has since evaded the vigilance of the police. Edward Keily, and Daniel Danaher, both convicted for the same offence, were arrested by Constable Slattery, of the Ballycane station. On the 23d of March, 1842, Constable Slattery arrested the above named William Hare, at Ballintaw bog, for another charge, when the Constable was beat and knocked down, but still persisted in keeping Hare until George Tuthil, of Faha, and Edward Green, of Greenmount, Esqrs., were passing at the time, and both gentlemen assisted the Constable to secure Hare.
