

and unity of the
who call themselves
means by which this We profess ourselves of opinion, and
way of experiment,
of domestic legis-
ily realised, but we ect which does not protecting its own
of these discussions,
have so long slumeir lethargy. When n seldom differ for a e not by what name
e himself—let him
ened though it be—the new and unde-
if he love Ireland
elfare—if he cherish
n personal honour nterest and ours are reward our united aracter of those who but conclude by re-
hich I sincerely feel,
ernal union, generated riotism, in order to ual among the proud-ms of the earth.—I
y yours,
LIAM S. O'BRIEN.

following letter from mmunication, asking ble as Repealers:—
THE LOYAL NATIONAL
y, 28th Oct. 1844.

orm the association
ws of the Rechabites art of the Scotch Re-
nion that every in-Society is guilty of a ay, of an offence for for the term of seven nstances, the Repeal
e to refuse the sub-
to the order of Recha-he association of any bite, in order that he ooks. No Rechabite
e Repeal Association.
mind, that notwith-
s, this order of Rec-eat mischief, and to the working classes;
d to every Irishman,
, not to become a
he be already a mem-

... dignity is in the gift of the Crown. Dean Preston was an enlightened Minister of the Church—faithful, consistent, and honorable in all transactions, lay or clerical. He was beloved in private life, and a liberal patron of local charities in Limerick.

MURDER OF ARTHUR GLOSTER, ESQ.

This gentleman left his residence at Moylish, in the late North Liberties, on Monday morning, to visit his estate at Toonagh, county Clare, which he had purchased under the Courts for £11,000, and after a conference with some of the tenants, left in his gig, to return home, unaccompanied by any person. Between four and five o'clock in the afternoon he was way-laid on the road to the left of Kilkishen, between that village and Quin, and near to Rathlooba, by assassins, who fired close at their victim as he passed, and sent two gunshots through his body, perforating the heart and lungs.
The shots were heard, one immediately after the other.
Mr. Gloster, unprepared for the sudden attack, was unable to call out or resist the assassins, but leaning back, expired in a few minutes from his wounds, the horse proceeding along the road for near half a mile, when he turned aside, and some children then exclaimed, the gentleman was drunk or asleep, for in that state did he appear to them whilst probably in the last agonies of death. He was then removed from the vehicle, without signs of life, blood trickling down his back, and his coat burned from the powder. The mangled body was deposited in the police barrack at Kilkishen, to await an inquest, and a message was sent for his brothers in this city, who left that night for the awful scene.
The remains of the ill-fated gentleman were brought this afternoon to his residence at Moylish, and will be interred to-morrow at St. John's Church. The verdict at the inquest was wilful murder against persons yet unknown. Mr. Gloster was an extensive grazier and dairy farmer, and by will made within a very few years left his property, which is considerable, to his only sister, Miss Gloster, who lived with her brother. The deceased was unmarried, and in the event of his sister not changing her condition, the reversion of his fortune under the same deed, will be enjoyed by the trustees of the Episcopal Asylum Chapel in this city.

Robert Hunt, Esq. of this City, was fired at on Monday, in the noon day, near Smithfield gate, Croagh, by an armed party of men, one of whom covered him as he drove along the road in his gig, by presenting a gun within a few feet of that gentleman, but Mr.
Hunt's servant instantly drew out a pistol, which he pointed towards the hostile cover and this made the fellow's hand shake, for he fired, but providentially missed his object. Mr. Hunt then drove into Rathkeale, and returned yesterday to this City. The fellows had jumped out on the road, to follow him, but seeing Mr. Hunt and servant both well armed, they gave up the pursuit.

The wife of a farmer named M'Cormick, at Madeboy, near Abington, was killed on Monday, in a family feud.

not hit him.
Cross-examined—No residence; was merely idea of the object of the
was not then on his ke present at first, viz. a house; a crowd subse Lindsay laid hold of h cannot say whether it which Fogarty flung; Fogarty was then so
crowd collected he disco went in pursuit of trav bringing him to the F was directed to Fogarty
"a damn good licking," the following day he d was not for the purpos testimony; might have else that he was indu grounds for an action a in the decree; he was but never with persons Another witness de at the time, and saw Scully's house; afterw and Lindsay stab him say with what; there at the time; saw F
could not say what.

Dr. Gelston—Attent
in four places; his life Mr. Bowles, of Bro
character and good co lihood by sharpening s Mr. O'Donnell gave sive and harmless conc
The prisoner Lindsay and sentenced to 12 m labour. Fogarty, who assault only, was all recognizance.

Michael Crowe, and sons, were tried for which arose out of a d
party were acquitted,
They were sentenced t
to 6 and 3 months,

This was the last C

The Assistant-Barr
Franklin and the Mayo o'clock, and were occu fire-arms for the city.
was 38, of which 22
which the sessions ter

At Killarney Sess
assistant Barrister, Brennan, foreman of baronies of Kerry, the the habit of refusing t