Roscrea, 27th March, 1845.

TO THE PARISHIONERS OF THE UNION OF ROSCREA AND KYLE.

MY DEAR FRIENDS,
Under the deepest emotions of gratitude and esteem I beg to acknowledge your kind and affectionate address. A separation from those amongst whom I have ministered with so much pleasure and acceptance, for nearly seventeen years, cannot but be attended with heartfelt regret, and I may therefore truly say, that my promotion to the Deanery of Limerick is necessarily accompanied with sorrow and pain.
Whatever I have accomplished in the cause of piety and christian charity, I must in common candour, under the divine blessing, chiefly attribute to yourselves—at all times you strengthened my hands, you fixed my resolves, and I should neither do justice to you nor to my own feelings did I not confederate you with myself in all our varied works and labours of love.
To those of you of other religious persuasions, who have generously come forward to testify your regard, I beg to reciprocate most cordially the same feelings of respect and esteem. We have long dwelt in peace, mutually co-operating for the public good, and this too, I am assured, without compromise of principle or dereliction of duty.
From those of you, who have given me another proof of your affectionate interest, I accept with the sincerest pleasure, your splendid and beautiful present. After many and repeated acts of kindness, such an assurance was not required; but I have the satisfaction to think, that to myself and my Family, it will ever remain a constant and endearing memorial of our mutual attachment and esteem.
To all of you I must now say, Farewell! Accept my best wishes and prayers for your continued happiness and welfare, and be assured, I shall always hold in grateful remembrance the years I have spent amongst you.
Believe me to remain, your ever faithful and
obliged Friend and Servant,
WILLIAM HIGGIN.
