

countrymen had fallen victims to famine. Having drawn a touching picture on this subject, the speaker attributed the famine not to a visitation of Providence, but to the minister of England. He then went on to show that the minister was aware of the distress in February, and that no steps had been taken to avert it.—He had to arraign the government for neglecting to find food for the people.—(cheering.) After the meeting at the Rotundo, the most important demonstration that had ever taken place in the country for many years, when there were assembled the magnates of the land, as well as the representatives of the democracy—where it was gratifying to see on one hand the great leader of the Irish people—(cheers.)—and on the other the sternest upholders of the aristocracy—he had some hopes for Ireland. He had been entirely disappointed on his going to London, he found the few and feeble representatives who formed a deputation in the assemblies, and though they were but a small minority, he had still hopes, he still thought that they might take such a position in both houses as would make themselves and their country respected.—(hear.) Alas! the influence of English party showed how vain that hope. On the great question where the party interests of England were at hazard Irish virtue and Irish patriotism were forgotten. When Lord George Bentinck proposed sixteen millions for giving employment to the the people, and at the same time developing the resources of the country—(hear) a proposition that was welcomed and cheered by the "Irish party"—the minister raised the cry of distress—he told the Irish members that the government was in danger and threatened to resign.—(groans.)—He then saw a spectacle that made him ashamed of the name of an Irishman.—(cheers.) He saw those men who had vowed before God and their country never to allow any interest to weigh one feather in the balance with the interests of their country—he saw them under the influence of the British minister record their votes against that measure.—(a voice "Dillon Brown"—groans.) From that moment he saw that all good result from the Irish meeting was lost—that the Irish member was not only powerless—but that the very name of an Irish member was a by-word among nations.—(cheers.) He then proceeded to refer to the Irish poor law, and afterwards he said he understood that Mr. John O'Connell had expressed an anxiety that the differences of all sections of the repeal party should be adjusted (hear.) He could say in all sincerity that towards Mr. John O'Connell and every member of his family he felt none but friendly feelings. Towards other partisans of Conciliation Hall he had no animosity. There were a few individuals there who had assailed him in a manner he did not think he deserved (cheers.) Against these he had, with the exception of pity, no other resentment but to forget and forgive.—(cheers.) But in the present question he had to deal not with persons but principles.—(hear.) It had not been on any light ground that the principles of the Irish Confederation had been promulgated, and from those principles he was not prepared to recede.—(cheers.)—not to speak of the memorable controversy on "physical force"—(laughter)—a controversy which remained as unsettled as ever—putting aside all reference to the financial affairs of the association, which should, in his opinion, have long ago led to a publication of their accounts. There was still remaining what would ever be a bar to effectual coalition—he meant a Whig alliance. He thought that this Whig alliance had done more to degrade their country at home and abroad than any other circumstance he could call to mind in Ireland's history, and therefore entertaining those feelings he was not prepared to take his place behind the minister (hear.) The learned gentleman having expressed himself in favor of the poor law if accompanied by other subsidiary measures, moved a resolution in conformity with the sentiments of his address.

Seconded by Francis Comyn, Esq., J.P., and carried. Mr. Meagher moved a resolution, calling upon the landlords and aristocracy of Ireland to put themselves at the head of the national movement, and sat down amidst deafening cheers.

A vote of thanks having been passed to the chairman, the meeting separated.

Villa, near Limerick, to Let.

AND immediate possession can be given, the House, Offices, and Ground of SOUTH VILLA, adjoining Mr. FISHER'S Demesne of LIFERGAN, on the old Tralee mail-coach road, within ten minutes walk of the Crescent. The House is in excellent order, cheerful and commodious, commanding views of the Shannon and surrounding country. It consists of Dining-room, Drawing-room, Parlor, six Bed Chambers, and Dressing Closet, with an excellent Kitchen, Pantries, &c.

The Land, over five Acres, is in the best heart. The Garden is walled in, and stocked with Fruit Trees. The Stables and Coach-houses are new and convenient; and the Pump is remarkable for the purity of its water. The Grounds extend to, and communicate with the new Western Entrance.

Apply to Mrs. LYNCH, Roche's-street.

April 10.

Mr and Miss Gubbins; Mr William Howly, D.L., and Mrs and Miss Howly; Mr and Mrs O'Grady, Cragbeg; Mr J. Mrs. and the Misses Boyse; Mr T and Miss Croker, Croom Castle; Mr Watson, Mr T Boyse, Miss Boyse, and Mrs Trevelyan, Mr Waller, Mr H and Miss Vereker; Mr A and Misses Russell; Mr Power, Mr and Mrs Considine; Miss Sexton, Mr and Misses M'Mahon; Mr Clanchy, Mr and Mrs Nash, Mr B Baldwin, M. P., Mr. Mrs. Misses Canny, Miss Massy, Beale Castle; Misses Bruce, Mr. Charles Walnutt, Miss Scully, Miss Kelly, Mr and Miss Massy, Glanduff; Mr Maunsell's, Mr George Watson, Mr and Mrs O'Neill; Mr and Mrs Greene; Misses O'Grady, Miss Sinclair, Col and Mrs Trevor; Col's Cox, Grierson, RE; Mr M'Neill, Col and Misses Cator; Mr Cass 75th; Mr Watson, 75th; Mr Mahony, 75th; Mr. Goold, Messrs. O'Farrell, Major Dupois, R.A. Commissary General and Misses Hewitson; Mr and Misses Irwin; Mr and Mrs Browning; Miss Twiss, Mr and Miss Monkton; Misses Graydon, Mr Studdert, Mr O'Callaghan, Capt. and Mrs. Patterson; Mr Fraser, jun. Mr. Macmahon's, Hon. Captain Blacquire, Mr. Harrison, Major De Salis, 8th Hussars; Mr Gough, Royal Dragoons; Major Graham, 59th; Mr Massy, 85th; Mr Taylor, 20th, and Miss Taylor; Mr and Mrs Dwyer; Mr Andrews, Mr Fosbery, Mr O'Grady, Mrs Colonel and Miss Middleton, Mr R Russell, Mr and Miss Gabbett's, Mr and Misses Rose, Mr Studdert, Mr Hobson, Mr Fitzgerald, Mr Rose, Mr Power, Mr Frend, Captain and Miss Mauleverer, Mr Carrol and the Misses Nash, Mr and Miss Blennerhassett, Mrs Creagh, Mr and Mrs O'Neill, Misses Sheehy, officers Horse Artillery, 8th Hussars, 55th, 59th and 85th.

Mrs. Col. Mansel and Miss Mansel arrived from Limerick at the house of Col. Mansel, Q. M. General for Ireland, in Dublin on Thursday.

Monday next the burgesses of Richmond Ward are to elect a representative in place of R. MacMahon, Esq. elected Alderman, vice Bodkin, deceased.

The Dublin distillers have commenced distilling from sugar.

Thursday morning the Engine of the Limerick and Waterford Railway Company made its first trial over the Railway as far as Ballysimon, the rate of speed being 35 miles an hour.

On and after next Monday, the Messrs. Bournes' coaches and caravans to Kildare, will pass through Nenagh, Roscrea, Borris-in-Ossory, Mountrath, Templemore, Rathdowney, Maryborough, Emo, Ballybrittis, and Monastereven, an hour earlier to meet the railway trains.

A taring-house adjoining the rope manufactory of Messrs. W. & T. English, on the Roxboro' Road, was accidentally burned down last night. The St. Michael's parish and West of England engines were called out to subdue the flames, which did not extend to the adjacent premises, and the damage sustained will not retard the business carried on. John Crips, Esq., J.P., was promptly on the spot.

The Commissioners of the City are abundantly supplied with flax seed, which we understand will be sold to purchasers.

The hasty edict of the Poor-law Commissioners to close the Union workhouse before the out-door relief measure is in operation, has aggravated the prevailing distress, and filled every door with most importunate, and, we fear, in many cases, really destitute, if not starving mendicants.

The Relief Committee this day appointed Mr. Patrick Coghlan, of Singland, revising officer for the south suburb ward, in the electoral division of Limerick.

Upwards of thirty persons have received summonses in the neighbourhood of Ennistimon, to attend the House of Commons' committee, on the enquiry concerning Captain Wynne, moved by Mr. Cornelius O'Brien, M.P.

The Kilmaley Committee were remodeled under the new act and held their first meeting at the Court-house of Ennis. viz:—Rev. Charles Ward—Chairman; Marcus Keane, Treasurer; Thomas Gibson, James Gibson, William M'Namara, E. G. Mahon, and Rev. Daniel Lynch, P.P. Mr. Basil L. Davoran was appointed Secretary.

James Frawley, a young man, while serving ejection processes near Croagh on Wednesday, was severely wounded by the accidental discharge of a pistol which he had in his breeches pocket for his protection. The entire charge lodged in the thigh, and shattered the abdomen. He was brought into the infirmary, and died there yesterday of the wound.

At Galway assizes twenty-eight offenders were sentenced to transportation, varying from 7 to 14 years, and 59 to various periods of imprisonment, for cattle and sheepstealing, &c. Thomas Cosgrave, convicted under the Admiralty Commission, of the murder of Bridget Barrett, is sentenced to be executed on the 24th April. Dr. William Lane is elected Coroner for Derry.

Mr. James Kyle, general manager for George Henry, Esq. proprietor of Glenburne mills, near Keady, county Armagh, went into the mill where Indian corn was being ground, shortly after it was set to work, when he was caught by a cog wheel, dragged into the machinery and killed in an instant.

as: we ag: str the Mi aga pre Rif £1 mal the M' mar A reso tion: new To the held Mr. offic tions the h in rei comn neer, and dues, distin that e O'Far inform The Wedn dead o to star Mr. laloe C Mr. busine —Mr. Longfo The to post as it wi then. The c passed t Esq. T. The appear: The F the Cele. port on Fifteen with cor: The Li day next