

DEATHS.

Yesterday morning, at his house in Catherine-street, after a long and painful illness, which she bore with the most exemplary patience, to the inexpressible grief of her afflicted family and friends, Isabella, the beloved wife of James Lloyd, Esq. Trusting in the merits and blood of her REDEEMER, she resigned her pure spirit into the hands of Him who gave it, and died as she had lived, in charity with all mankind.

At his mother's, Westland Row, Dublin, on Sunday, after a tedious illness, John White, Esq. for many years an efficient assistant in the Military Secretary's Office—a young gentleman universally respected and esteemed. He was an affectionate son, an attached brother, and filled all the relative and social duties in a manner most deserving.

At Bannatyne Cottage, near Lickadoon Castle, on Saturday night last, of typhus fever, taken in his ministerial duties, the Rev. Robert Bourke, P.P. of Donaghmore and Cahirrary. Impressed from an early age with love and veneration for the Priesthood, the Rev. gentleman devoted himself with corresponding zeal to the exercise of its sacred duties. Animated by a lively sense of Gospel truth, he laboured unweariedly to inculcate the inestimable value of life everlasting. The all-saving precepts of "God made man," were enforced with an earnestness that could only be the fruit of heartfelt conviction and endless gratitude to the Creator and Saviour. Whether in social converse, or pastoral exhortation, Rev. Mr. Bourke was admired and beloved by all who knew him, for a hearty kindness of feeling, warm attachment, and affectionate admonitions—to the influence of which few could be insensible. His venerable parents are left to mourn the loss of the best of sons, whose joy it was to comfort their declining years. The remains of the Rev. gentleman were interred at St. Mary's Church on Monday, a numerous body of the Clergy, with a large and most respectable concourse of persons attending the funeral.

On Monday morning last, at her brother's house in George-st. Joanna, wife of Mr. Andrew Jackson, and eldest daughter of the late Mr. John M'Auliffe, of this City. She was long endeared to her family and friends by a gentle and obliging disposition, and cheerful, yet unobtrusive, manners. A deep sense of moral and religious principle was the unvarying rule of her life; and her last farewell of this world was breathed in Christian peace and love to mankind.
