On Thursday night, Sylvanus Bevan, master of the Chandos, left Tralee to get on board his vessel at the Samphires. He arrived on the cliffs at a late hour, and having hailed, his boat immediately put off, but on arrival in shore there could be no account of the Captain. Search was made that night and next day, when the remains of the unfortunate gentleman were found in a hollow at foot of the cliff, from which he had fallen, with his neck broken. What makes this event more melancholy is that deceased had been married to a young English girl, Miss Bowden, of Bristol, in Blenner-ville Church, on Christmas day last.

The Eliza Sanders, from Patras to Liverpool, took fire 15th inst. off Cape Clear, and was destroyed. Crew (except one man drowned) took the boat, and arrived at Liverpool.
