SONNET

TO THE MEMORY OF THE EARL OF CLARE.

And art thou gone! pure, noble-minded CLARE,
 And has thy generous spirit passed away
 From those who love thee, and thy name reveres,
 To the bright realms of everlasting day?
 May thy angelic spirit hover near
 Her—who so prized thee, with a sister's love,
 And point her drooping spirit to that sphere
 Where sweet reunion waits on earthly love:
 Nor need the herald's boast, the marble urn,
 Seek to perpetuate thy worthful fame;—
 How many orphans venerate thy name,
 How many hearts with grateful ardour burn
 At thought of thee—whose loss they all deplore,
 And feel they ne'er will see thy likeness more?
