of Headford, is giving £100 towards the purchase of 25 young girls from that workhouse.

W. Sidney Godolphin Osborne's last will, headed "the Irish demand annuities," is thoroughly Irish. Was it a matter of furnishing it they never would have known better than themselves. I most heartily wish to give to the world the history of the money that was expended in Ireland; whose names are to represent paupers, whose dogs are to be with the meal bought for the starvelling chief traffickers in the iniquity of the same on these days of British liberalism and sense of honour which forbids the "tax collectors." One would have thought they were a nation of Bayards. They are not. They are enough in the way of jobbing to send this is another thing to sending to the gallows!!! Shame upon this vile calumny.
