

DEATHS.

Sunday last, the 7th inst. at St. Leonards-on-the-Sea, in her 40th year, after a protracted illness, borne with patient suffering and Christian resignation, Lady Anna Maria Monsell, the beloved consort of William Monsell, Esq. M.P. for this county. Language is inadequate to pourtray the eminent yet unobtrusive virtues of this most excellent lady, and her easy prepossessing manners in private life, since the period at which, to the delight of her noble parents, she emerged from the home of her childhood, until she became the devoted wife and loving mother, ever happy in doing good, and grateful to the Lord for what He had thus placed at her disposal. But there is no earthly enjoyment without alloy, and it pleased Providence that Lady Monsell should drink the bitter cup of affliction in the death of her only child, a beautiful boy, snatched from the embrace of his parents, at an early and most interesting age. The desponding mother never recovered the violent shock of this bereavement, and her constitution gradually sunk, notwithstanding most tender and ceaseless attentions from her noble relatives. Lady Monsell's only solace in declining health was to administer to the comforts, to relieve the necessities of the poor wherever she sojourned; and the humble cottagers of Adare held the first place in her affections. The last moments of this noble Lady were soothed by the presence of her excellent parent, the Dowager Countess Dunraven, and of her afflicted husband, Mr. Monsell: Lady Anna Maria died in the assured hope of a glorious resurrection, through the all saving merits of the LORD JESUS. Her mortal remains will be brought over for interment in the family vault at Kilkeedy church, on Saturday morning, beside those of her dearly beloved child.
