

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

Those persons Indebted to the LIMERICK CHRONICLE for two years and upwards, and applied to by letter, or personally, for the amount, are hereby informed, that their accounts will be handed over to our Law Agent, for recovery, if not discharged within a month. It is very unreasonable to expect such long credit when it should be remembered that all our disbursements are $\text{£} \text{sh}$

All post-office orders, and letters of credit, and communications generally, to the CHRONICLE, are to be addressed to JOHN BASSETT.

Advertisements intended for publication in the LIMERICK CHRONICLE should be sent to the office before 11 o'clock on Wednesday's and Saturdays; otherwise they will be late for insertion.

THE LIMERICK CHRONICLE

SATURDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 18.

BY MAGNETIC TELEGRAPH.

The report that the Bank of Paris has refused to pay in specie is untrue.

The refusal of the Bank of England to advance money on government security has taken the commercial world by surprise.

The funds are further declining.

Naples seems to be in earnest to throw down the gauntlet to England and France.

(From Last Night's London Gazette.)

War Department, October 17.

Cornets Lord Ernest Vane Tempest and William J. Birt, of the 4th Light Dragoons, are dismissed from Her Majesty's army, in consequence of conduct unbecoming officers and gentlemen, and subversive of good order and discipline, as reported to Her Majesty, by the General Commanding-in-Chief.

The Mayor of Cork has devoted the entire of his salary to the local charities of the city, and placed its distribution in the hands of a committee of gentlemen who have with judgment and impartiality disposed of the entire amount, with the exception of £23 reserved for income tax. The example shown by the Mayor of Cork, is well worthy of imitation by all Mayors in Ireland.

Sir John Fitzgerald, Bart. M.P. County Clare, has contributed £30, and Lady Fitzgerald, £20, to the Newmarket Catholic Church.

On Monday next the Rajah of Scinde, his son, and attendants, and accompanied by Mr. Coffee the Prince's secretary (a near connexion of Lord Dunboyne) return to Cruise's Hotel from Knapogue Castle where he was hospitably received by Lord Dunboyne and the neighbouring gentry. During the day the Rajah amused himself shooting and proved himself a capital marksman. The Rajah will visit all the public buildings in this City, and leaves for Cork on Tuesday.

If Lord Vane Tempest got a good drubbing from the youngster he annoyed in the 4th Light Dragoons, the authorities would be saved the trouble of a court-martial. This Scion of nobility is no honour to the peerage. The son of the most ignorant peasant would ignore his impudent and unmeaning pranks. His lordship entered the army as a private, and it would be well he remained so as his associates made him

SUDDEN DEATH OF THOMAS E. DAVENPORT, ESQ. J.P.

It is with feelings of sincere sorrow we have to announce the melancholy and unexpected demise of Thomas E. Davenport, Esq. J.P. Ballinacourty, county Limerick, which took place, on Thursday, at Newcastle West, whither he had gone to attend a meeting, convened for the purpose of promoting a Railway between that town and Rathkeale. On the previous evening Mr. Davenport had been in our Office, apparently in the enjoyment of his usual excellent health, and then no one could imagine that the hand of Death would have so soon snatched him away from the family of which he was the pride and support and the circle of which he was the ornament. How forcibly does the Scripture truth strike our minds.— "In the midst of life we are in death." Mr. Davenport was an affectionate husband, an attached parent, and discharged the various duties of social and domestic life, in a manner that became a useful and a good citizen. Mr. Davenport was an extensive land and monetary agent, managing of the large estates of the Earl of Clare, Mr. Pigot, Rathkeale, and Mr. Caulfield, with a judgment and impartiality that gained the confidence of his employers, and won the esteem and admiration of the various tenancies. At the meeting on Thursday, Mr. Davenport was to have proposed one of the resolutions, and was delineating out some point on a map, and explaining the advantages to be derived from the establishment of the proposed Railway, when he was observed to become suddenly weak and unable to articulate. He was at once removed from the Court-house to a house in the neighbourhood where restoratives, and all the appliances of Medical skill were applied, but in vain, for in about twenty minutes Mr. Davenport had ceased to exist—he had breathed his last, and his voice was hushed in the still silence of the grave. His remains were same evening conveyed to the residence of his afflicted family at Ballinacourty.

The funeral of Mr. Davenport will take place on Monday morning next, at 8 o'clock, at Castletown. It is confidently expected that Mr. Davenport's son will succeed to his father's agencies.

Lieut. Col. Dickson and Rev. Mr. Plummer attended Mr. Davenport in his dying moments, and Dr. Perse rendered necessary medical aid.

THE INQUEST.

Doctor Ambrose, Coroner, held an Inquest, at 5 o'clock, when the following Jury was sworn:—R. Lanouze, foreman; John Gorman, Patrick Condon, Patrick Scanlan, John Loane, Bryan Guerin, Michael M'Coy, John M'Auley, George Dartnell, John Twynam, Thomas Purcell, Patrick Madigan.

The only witness examined was Dr. Perse, whose testimony was to the effect that after Mr. Davenport had been removed from the Court-house to the grand jury room, he spoke to him, and said he had a pain in his heart; he asked for a drink, and was supplied with wine and water; he then said the pain was gone, and expired in a few minutes; he only survived 20 minutes from the time he was attacked; I am of opinion he died of an affection of the heart.

The Jury found that Thomas E. Davenport, Esq., late of Ballynacourty house, died by the visitation of God.

The body was then placed in a shell and removed to Ballynacourty House, the residence of deceased.
