DEATHS.

At Dundalk, where he had been at school, of gastric fever, aged 15 years, John Jones Jackson, second son of George Jackson, Esq. of Laurel Hill, Roscrea—a young gentleman of great promise, whose gentle manners won the affections of all who knew him, while his ripening talents gave unmistakable indication of undoubted ability. His premature demise is a source of the most poignant grief to his family and friends, but those whom God loves He takes to himself, before their youthful sincerity is tainted by the duplicity of the world.

On Sunday morning, at Croom House, in this county, after a few days illness, to the inexpressible grief of her afflicted family, Frances Hortense, daughter of the late James D. Lyons, Esq. DL.

On Monday, at Croydon, Surrey, from rheumatic fever, Ann Mary Josephine, the beloved wife of Richard P. Mervin, Esq. and daughter of William St. Laurence, Esq. of Patrick-street, in this city. Scarcely two months have elapsed since this young lady left her father's home a happy bride, with prospects of a long enjoyment of all the pleasures that youth, beauty, accomplishments, wealth and station can command; but in the sad uncertainty of everything earthly the fond anticipations of her friends have been bitterly disappointed, for the cold hand of death now holds in the unrelaxing grasp of its terrible embrace that fair form which so many beheld with pride and admiration so short time ago standing at the altar, while she made her marriage vows. Truly in the midst of life we are in death—still in the brightness of that hope which shines beyond the grave, we should, as the young lady who is the subject of this obituary ever did, so live as to deprive the grave of its victory and death of its sting.

At Frudder house, county Wicklow, Elizabeth, the beloved wife of the Rev. Henry Clopton Keogh, and daughter of the late Nicholas Aylward, Esq. Shankill Castle, county Kilkenny.
