we number more than sixteen. We ought namely, eighty (cheers). If we had what I ask and wish for the ballot—we ought to have 90 out of 100. Every man in Ireland should have the right to exist on the soil he was born on. But how is it now (hear, hear) In the county of Londonderry the tenantry of the Marquis of Waterford made an humble petition to be allowed vote according to their consciences (cheers). Nine tenths of these men were Presbyterians, as they sought the privilege of advocating the principles they thought right. The reply was a cold and unanswer, "the Marquis of Waterford expects you will vote for so and so" (cries of oh, oh). We hear a great deal about the undue influence of Father Conway and Father Luke Ryan. The government may be right in prosecuting these clergymen, and if they acted illegally I hope they may be convicted; but I would like to see a prosecution against some landlords who acted illegally (cheers). These prosecutions should not be one-sided altogether (hear, hear). I will be satisfied when both sides of the question are dealt with alike but when I see all the severity dealt out to one side I confess I am disgusted with the way things appear at present (cheers). I came a long way to attend this business to-day,

Mr. Dan Lacey—And there is cead mile fail over your head (cheers).

Mr. Calcutt—I have no interested motive in attending this meeting, or in going into parliament; but I feel that the interests of the majority of my countrymen are at stake on this question (hear, hear). I will go to any length (cheers). I have been raised to the position of member of parliament for one of the most distinguished counties of Ireland, the county which in historical periods had honored itself, and lately, and on all occasions, did so (hear, hear). I have been raised to that position by the tenant farmers, who know me. They would not elect a stranger. They knew my dealings as a landlord, a magistrate, and in every other capacity. They elected me, and by the people I will stand. The hon. gentleman sat down amid deafening cheers.

Patrick Culhane, a farmer, was killed on Saturday last near Glin, by falling from his horse while in a state of intoxication.

A marriage is on the tapis between Colonel Wilson and Miss Bathurst. The gallant colonel was mainly instrumental in rescuing the lady from a watery grave in July last. The parties were upset in a boat near Twickenham Reach, and the lady, who sank on the instant, would inevitably have perished but for the presence of mind with which the corpulent colonel dived to the bottom of the water.

MORE CURES OF ASTHMA, CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, &c. BY DR. LOOCOCK'S PULMONIC WAFERS.—From Mr. C. Reinhardt, Chemist, 22, Market-place, Hull. "Gentlemen,—Many and surprising are the testimonials of relief afforded to confirmed cases of asthma, and consumption, and long-standing coughs, and it will gratify me to refer to many respectable parties who are really anxious to make known the great benefit they have derived from this reasonable remedy. I enclose a testimonial of no ordinary value, as it is the genuine expression of a grateful man's feelings. I remain, J. C. REINHARDT." Dr. Locock's Pulmonic Wafers give instant relief and a rapid cure of asthma, consumption, coughs, and all disorders of the breath and lungs. To singers and public speakers they are invaluable, for clearing and strengthening the voice.
