man, who was in receipt of her Majesty's money, drunk in the streets. The accused said that he was a long time out of town, and only got drunk when he came into it—fined 6d and costs.

John Supple, a water bailiff from Castle-Connell, whose face presented an awfully battered appearance, was found lying in a helpless state on the flags. He received an excellent character for sobriety from several persons in Court, and was discharged.

Cornelius Tuomy was charged with drunkenness and rushing about the street with a knife in his hand, making all the people fly before him—one month's imprisonment with hard labour was awarded him.

Michael Donovan, a Tipperary tinker, was drunk and fighting with a tinkeress in Boherbuoy, and with having a bad half crown in his pocket, was fined 10s or 14 days' imprisonment.

Mary Ryan, who is married 28 years, was drunk in Boherbuoy, and wishing to turn her house inside out, was smashing her furniture. She agreed with the magistrate that whiskey drinking was a very bad plan to pursue, and that the less of that article made use of the better. She was fined 1s and costs, but as she had to be treated to a jaunting car in order to be escorted to the lock-up, the set down was also deducted from 5s 6d which Constable Daly had on hands.

Ellen M'Donald was sent to jail for three days, for being drunk in the public streets.

Eliza Lacy, charged by Constable Nash with larceny, was remanded for further examination.

Jean Baptiste Victor Emanuel, not the chivalrous King of Sardinia, but a dealer in kid gloves, was charged by Constable Hughes with being drunk, in the classic region of King's Lane, on the previous night. The accused did not appear, excusing himself for his apparent but not real want of courtesy to the bench, by pleading (in a note) von larje bad head, vich troble him ver moush. Victor having left 6s with the Constable for his appearance, the full fine 5s, and 6d costs, were imposed, and the Constable was directed to return the change.

The Mayor, with Henry Watson, Esq., presided in the police court this morning.—Two persons of the name of Leary, and Catherine Downey, were committed for trial for a murderous assault on a woman of the name of Margaret Fuller, on Sunday morning, on the road leading from Ballinacurra to Limerick.

CASTLE-CONNELL.—The display of fireworks at this enchancing locality on Monday evening was most effective and imposing. Hundreds of respectable citizens travelled by railway to enjoy the delightful treat, and two bands were in attendance. The arrangements for conveyance of visitors to and from were complete and satisfactory, reflecting much credit on the Secretary of the company, Mr E W Maunsell, and the vigilant superintendent of all our local lines, Mr W L Payne. Castle-Connell is daily improving, and ere long will become as celebrated for pleasure trips as Queenstown. On Sunday last the number of visitors was immense, and numerous parties are being arranged for Sunday next. The railway directors deserve great credit for their exertions to gratify public taste, and afford recreative amusement.
