

letter. He did not attend, nor did he send communications, and he was elected. On arriving, to take the charge, he learned the circumstances under which the appointment became vacant, and he resigned and wrote a letter to Doctor King, the secretary of the Cork Medical Association stating that, "under the circumstances he could not hold the place with honour or dignity to his profession." It is now a matter of fixed arrangement between the members of the Medical Profession in Ireland not to accept any appointment from which a Medical officer has been refused for insufficient reason, or that he has resigned on account of inadequate remuneration. Dr. Baylee, the medical officer, will not now accept the place unless the salary is raised to a 100% a year, as in the other districts. The refusal of the Guardians to raise the salary to the 80% was, in this case, anything but reasonable. There is a long article in the Cork Herald on this subject.

SIMON MARBLE WORKS.—It is truly gratifying to observe the progress making in this branch of manufacture; the magnificence of the chimney and mural ornaments, &c., on view at the establishment, 60 George's street, in this city, is highly creditable to the skill and workmanship of all employed. Employment to an extensive amount is afforded through the agency of this factory, both at home and in Limerick; therefore the gentry will do well to patronise it.—See advertisement.

TRICK NATIONAL AGRICULTURAL SCHOOL.—On the last the Right Rev. Dr. Higgins, Lord Bishop of Cork, accompanied by the Very Rev. Dean Keating and Robert R. Gelston, Esq., M.D., Visiting Bishop, paid a visit to the above Institution, of which he was one of the original founders, and in the progress and success of which he still continues to take the deepest interest. At the entrance to the Institution he was received by the superintendent, Mr. Brogan, and by Mr. Brogan, the Local Agricultural Officer, who conducted his lordship through the various departments of the establishment, including the schools for the male and female children of the

After proceeding through every portion of the domestic establishment, with the internal arrangement and cleanliness of which his lordship exhibited himself highly pleased, he proceeded to the dairy, first inspecting the dairy which elicited the highest approbation. Time did not permit of his attending to a hearing an examination of the pupils, but he made particular enquiries as to the number of young men receiving instruction as agricultural boarders, and the arrangements for their education and maintenance. On his departure he expressed to the Superintendent the great pleasure he experienced in finding the Institution established on such a large and respectable scale, and conducted in such an orderly and judicious manner; and, witnessing the large amount of improvement effected on the Model Farm, he expressed his regret in seeing it in its unimproved state. We believe it is correct in stating that his lordship's visit had a great influence in reference to the further extension of the work of the Institution as an agency of industrial instruction, and to its being accessible to the youth of the district desirous of obtaining a sound industrial education on much more favourable terms than under the existing regulations. This, his lordship's position as Commissioner of National Education, will most probably enable him speedily to effect; but if accomplished as we trust it will, the farming community, will be the gainers by the more liberal terms on

Mr. Turtle.
Fanny Merrington (Cadbury's Niece) Miss Harriet Saville.
Soldiers, Drummers, &c.

There is not much to be said of the plot of this piece; but it was gone through well. Cadbury, the quaker, (so fond of retirement), was ably personated by Captain Cater, while the spell thrown over him by the concerted arrangements of Capt. Brine R.E., who enacted the part of Captain Damer, gave rise to much merriment, and had the desired result—These were the two leading characters, and we must award the merit so well deserved.

THE IRISH TIGER.

Sir Charles Lavender,
Alderman Marrowfat,
Mr Bilbery,
Paddy Ryan,
John,
Miss Julia Marrowfat,
Nancy,

G Burleigh, Esq. 17th Regt.
Capt Grant, Staff.
Captain Travers 17th Regt.
Captain Joyce, 3d Buffs.
C Aylmer, Esq. 17th Regt.
Mrs Charles Dillon,
Miss Harriet Saville.

Capt. Joyce, as Paddy Ryan, portrayed the Irishman with effect, and a little training would have brought him fully up to the mark; he was ably sustained by Miss Saville, who done the part of Nancy to perfection. Captain Grant's Alderman Marrowfat was exceedingly good, whilst Captain Travers, as Bilbury, was everything that could be desired.

It is due to all who took a part in the dramatic entertainment to state that that the performance, from the commencement to the close, afforded pleasure and satisfaction.

The friends of Captain Dillon, commander of the "Duchess of Argyle" Steamer, in the upper Shannon are about getting up a Testimonial to be presented to that Gentleman for his untiring exertions and kindness to all passengers going by that vessel.

An inquest was held this morning by T Costello, Esq., one of the coroners, on the body of Eliza O'Connor the wife of a dealing man who was found drowned in the river near the north strand on yesterday. The Jury returned a verdict of "found drowned."

The weather, up to Thursday night, was "freezing and severe;" the night's were calm and the day's fine, but the cold during the day, and in the shade, was intense. Thursday, towards evening, became foggy, and at night rain descended copiously, and continued to fall up to 12 o'clock yesterday, since then the atmosphere has cleared up, and we have fine, although cold weather.

Viscount Guillamore and family have arrived at his lordship's seat, Rockbarton, from Kilkee.

Handel's oratoria was most successfully performed in the Musical Hall, Dublin, on Thursday, under the auspices of Jenny Lind; the capacious building was crowded to excess at 1/2 each. The proceeds, for Charity, must have exceeded 1,000/.

The letter signed "Common Sense," which appeared in our last number, was in type when the writer wished to withdraw it, but we could not comply with his desire, as the CHRONICLE was at press. Mr. Lax has, in consequence, waived his right to reply, and we are pleased at it, as, in our opinion, an exchange of personalities cannot be agreeable to either of the parties concerned.—E. L. C.

SARFIELD MEMORIAL.

The Marquess of Conyngham having been applied to for a subscription to the Sarfield Memorial Fund, has courteously replied, and with the liberality characteristic of his house, consented to subscribe. Mr. Jones, Hon. Secretary, has received the following communication from his Lordship:—

Canterbury, 25th Oct. 1859.

SIR—I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt

Hartigan he repository.

Average price of Beef from 55s to 60s per cwt. Bacon, 46s 6d per cwt.

Mr Laurence's second lot at Alderman Re

The justice Henry Watts R. Roger, Esq. Barron, R.M.

William Co charged with his wife in the that he came in a sack to c hor for it inst she began with "behavior" b toe, The M would not wives in the that to "hav kicking her i costs or 14 d

The defend money with a then in court

Alderman either one th beaten when

Defendant- The fine was

Mr. Lynch nameless client by order of Some Eblania the Shannon bided an over non compos an his, but which want of a pro to the poor b

John and of Limerick, duct in Shelb s hip not app

Two young in Messrs. Revingtons.

ness and with jail. The ob as the young say that the p charge of dru who said they sentenced to

The magist County petty s the chair, and summoned Jo house and bre of the 15th of peared for the that he commi would repair th