

FURTHER PARTICULARS OF THE OUT-RAGE.

A Belfast gentleman, who is an officer on board the Trent, has written to the Belfast News-Letter an account of the transaction, from which we extract the following interesting particulars:—
“Let me tell you how the Trent is manned and armed. We muster 96 men, all told. As regards easy metal, we have an old Tower gun, which, on my life, I believe would burst if shot were put into it, and which is used for giving signals. Resistance, of course, was then out of the question, even had we been justified in resisting, as the American musketeers ven guns of a side of heavy calibre, with a pivot on forward and aft. One broadside, and the old Trent would never have carried mail more. But we proceeded. A boat with some 50 men armed with the teeth, boarded us, and the officer commanding came on the quarter-deck, and asked for our commander. The conversation that ensued was exciting in the extreme. The lieutenant was asked if he was aware that her Majesty's mails were on board, that he was violating the law of neutrality, that his commander had done what might entail the most serious consequences. He knew it all perfectly, and so did his commander; but have the lies, dead or alive, of Messrs. Mason, Slidell, Eustis, and M'Farlane he would, and he demanded the passengers list, which was refused. The lieutenant, stepping suddenly on one side, laid his hand on the arm of me, noble-looking, white-headed gentleman, and I, 'Mr. Mason, I know you perfectly, we have met here; and you also, Mr. Slidell,' he added, pointing to the latter gentleman, who advanced forward, disingenuously to conceal himself. 'I am sorry for you but you must accompany me on board the San Jacinto.' The answer was, 'We will not; we appeal to the British captain whom we intrusted ourselves, to save us from outrage in Spanish waters, and on virtually fish soil.' Vain appeal! Five more boats had in mean time arrived, and marines, with fixed bayonets, had taken possession of the main deck. Screams of rage, shame, and mortification stood in the main's eyes. One of the ladies, a most charming one, threw herself before the captain, and implored him with clasped hands not to allow her husband to be dragged from under the British flag. At the final question was put, 'If we refuse to give up the men up, what course will you adopt?' 'Take possession of the ship, and if you steam ahead, sink us; we will have these men at all risks.' 'Then,' Captain Williams, of the Royal Navy, our naval commander—then, sir, in the name of her Britannic Majesty's Government, whom—although a humble individual—I have the honour to represent, I protest, in the most solemn manner, against this cowardly and unbecoming act, and call on all here to witness my protest, foreigners and English."

DUBLIN, DECEMBER 4.

Kildare-street Club-House, one of the finest specimens of street architecture in this or any other part of the empire, has been opened for the reception of members, and is now beautifully and completely furnished up in every department. The new building affords an admirable view of the College Park and its principal apartments, and the visitor, as he looks forth from them, may well fancy himself in some rich portion of the country, amid majestic seats of the families, rather than in the midst of a great bustling city. The erection is in the Byzantine style, and quite unique. The external ornamentation is of the richest kind, and appropriate in every part. The pilasters and entablature are especially effective. The general external appearance of the palatial structure is all that the nicest eye could desire. Massiveness is combined with lightness and splendour with manifest provision for

CONSISTORIAL COURT—Nov. 30.

Parsons v. Parsons.
Miller, for the promovent, the wife of impugned for ad interim alimony to be allocated to her suit was for a divorce, on the ground of adultery. The parties had been married in 1805, and had three children; but for 20 years past the impugnant had lived with another lady, by whom he had another child. He was a retired officer of the Customs, and had a pension of £435 per annum, and had allowed his wife £60 a-year, and the two children who lived with her £40 each, making £140 a-year. His stopping the allowance to the children, one was imbecile in mind, the suit was instituted. The impugnant had had a fortune of £60 a-year, which the promovent had got. The promovent was entitled to a sum for alimony, viz., £140.
Messrs. G. C. C., for the impugnant, considered as too much, and offered £60 a-year, and to support the two children.
The judge held that the wife was entitled to a sum for alimony, as had been hitherto allowed, and that, in view of income-tax deductions, he thought it just to give her a sum, she undertaking to provide for and support the two children.

The guardians held their usual weekly meeting at 12 o'clock.

The Right Hon. Wm. MONSELL in the chair.
The state of the house was reported as follows:—Remaining on the previous Saturday, as per last return, 1,783; admitted during the week, 186; discharged, 87; died, 4; remaining on last Saturday, 1,878.

A deputation consisting of the Mayor, Alderman Mahony, the Rev. D. Wilson, and Mr. Cullen, attended for the purpose of informing the Board that the governors of St. John's Fever Hospital, in compliance with the request of the guardians, had agreed to give accommodation to three hundred patients in case the pressure on the workhouse became too great. A sub-committee was appointed to arrange the details. The Board having expressed their acknowledgments to the deputation, some of the members withdrew.

Mr. Carroll's motion to memorial the government to take measures to avert the impending distress in this county by procuring employment for the labouring classes was negatived by a majority of 12 to 9. A general opinion prevailed that no good would result from the adoption of such a memorial.

A discussion ensued with regard to the propriety of giving out-door relief to families the heads of which were sick and unable to work, which terminated in a notice of motion by the Mayor to have the merits of the question considered on that day fortnight.

ARREST FOR MURDER.—Our readers are familiar with the particulars of the brutal murder recently committed near Oula, in this county, when the life of John Quillinan, a respectable farmer, was sacrificed by, it is alleged, a man named Patrick Hayes, against whom a Coroner's jury found a verdict of wilful murder, and a warrant was issued for his arrest. In our last publication we published a reward list from the tenantry of Colonel the Hon. Richard Hare, for the apprehension of the perpetrator of the foul deed, and have the satisfaction to announce that upon same night (Saturday) Hayes was arrested by the police near Cappawhite, county Tipperary, while sitting by the fire in a farmer's house, smoking his pipe. His capture was quietly effected, without any resistance whatever, the offender being unarmed. He made no statement whatever as to his guilt or innocence, and upon yesterday morning was brought into this city by railway train, in custody of Sub-Inspector Enright, of Cappamore, and four of the Constabulary, by whom he was lodged in our county gaol for trial at next assizes. The man did not exhibit a callous demeanour, but on the contrary, was downcast and silent. He is of dark complexion, rather tall, determined countenance, dogged disposition, and aged about 28 or 30 years.

The following letter from one of the tenants upon Colonel Hare's estate, who subscribed to the "declaration" published in the CHRONICLE of Saturday, places beyond doubt the honest feeling of the tenantry in coming forward as they have done in this unfortunate transaction:—

1st December, 1861.

HONORABLE SIR—I have the pleasure of informing you that Hayes is arrested since last night—he passed by my place last night; my servant saw him with a double gun in his hand; I at once went to Doon to the police, and they collected the force and pursued the course I directed; he made to Cappawhite, and was taken before the Doon men had time to reach him.—I am, your obedient servant,

John Waller Braddell, Esq., Mallow.

"Anxious Enquirer," respecting the subscription of Mr. John Ball to the Cavour testimonial, is received, and will appear in our next.

Arrangements are in progress by the members of the Limerick Club for holding the annual ball at the Theatre Royal next month.

At a meeting of the Limerick Harbour Commissioners on yesterday, Alderman Thadens M'Donnell in the chair, an application made by Mr. William O'Hara, to stow a cargo of timber on the north pier of the Docks was refused.

Robert Anglim, and Eugene Coomey, Esqs., were yesterday re-elected Borough auditors, by a large majority of votes, notwithstanding an unexpected opposition secretly got up by two other candidates. In discharge of their duties Messrs. Anglim and Coomey have afforded general satisfaction, and if the idea of opposition occurred to them, a canvas would have proved the absurdity of an attempt to oust them from office.

The result of analysis of the contents of the stomach of the late Terence M'Mahon, butter buyer, of this City, whose death by supposed poisoning at the hands of his mother has been recorded, has been furnished to the Government by the resident Chemist of the Queens College, Cork, to the effect that "the stomach contained more poison than was sufficient to kill one person." A Magisterial inquiry was held today in the Police Court before the Mayor and other magistrates, when after a lengthened and minute investigation and examination of witnesses, the magistrates ordered informations to be received and fully committed the prisoner for trial at the next assizes. Mr. Thomas E. Carte, attended as solicitor for the prisoner. Mr. Beauchamp acted for the Crown.

average reduction has taken place of 34 per cent. in the working hours. The number of hands actually out of work is 26,194, or 10 per cent. It is said the reduction of employment will be increased at Christmas to at least 50 per cent. Many firms contemplate stopping for a clear month. Others will limit the cessation to a week.

AMERICAN INDEBTEDNESS.—The Times says the sum that will fall due next month in the shape of interest or dividends on American securities held in Europe, may be estimated at not less than £2,000,000. During the Crimean war Russia, with a most honorable scrupulousness, made a provision for the punctual discharge of the interest payable on her loans contracted in London. If the Washington Government imitates its example, it will be well for the parties concerned, and in the long run better for America herself.

WARLIKE PREPARATIONS.—A large portion of the vessels sailing for New York are carrying large quantities of rifles and other arms for the Federal Government, and a considerable number are in course of shipment during the present week, as no proclamation has yet been issued prohibiting the trade.

The Daily News has been assured that orders were issued yesterday to put 10 frigates into commission and to man them immediately. This intelligence is not confirmed.

FALL IN CANADIAN SECURITIES.—The depreciation in Canadian Government bonds has proceeded so far as to attract great attention. The 5 per cents closed yesterday at 90 to 92, being about 4 per cent. worse than Monday, and showing a total fall of nearly 12 per cent. since the dispute with America. The 6 per cents. fell 2 per cent. yesterday, and the downward tendency extended to the securities of other colonies.

The Times says the number of able seamen enrolled in the reserve would enable us, with the ordinary additions of hands always procurable, to send to sea at once a fleet of 30 line of battle ships. The naval reserve is daily receiving additions, and is in a most satisfactory condition.

The Earl and Countess of Derby will leave Knowsley to-morrow on a visit to her Majesty at Windsor Castle.

The Valetta with the Bombay and Mauritius mails arrived at Marseilles at 8 a.m. this morning. The mails were to leave for London at 10 a.m.

MONETARY AND COMMERCIAL.

Daily News City Article.

The full details from America with regard to the Trent have produced a feeling of doubt and hesitation in every department of business. There is a strong disposition to make everything secure against a possible storm. Many speculative holders have preferred to sell rather than run the risk of adverse events. The sales effected yesterday to rectify their position carried consols down ½ per cent., but from this fall there was a rally of ¼ per cent. The Continental exchanges yesterday afternoon experienced a movement in favour of this country.

LONDON CORN MARKET.

[USBORNE'S REPORT].

Supply of wheat, oats, and corn good. Weather wintry. Wheat, English and foreign, still against buyers, owing to the dangerous position of British American politics. Floating cargoes and those off coast enjoy favour, but business is a good deal checked by firmness of holders. Flour fully maintains previous quotations. Indian corn—a good deal of business is doing on speculation. Malting barley is in unsatisfactory demand.
