AT KILLALOE.—There are two or three al points in the physiology of the salmon all it is deserving of notice piscatorially; igher up the Shannon the salmon goes, the comes as to quality, so that it is common iverdale to send a present of a salmon b to some piscatorial friend on the Shan- Limerick; as one living above Kew or might send a present of a fish to a person Westminster. The salmon caught at the Killaloe is very far superior to that below though nine persons in ten in Limerick do the fact. The salmon still lower down the ough looking beautiful, is atrocious—it is d without taste; it answers, however, the d London market! As it is not impossible Highness the Prince of Wales or some of ay be tempted to whirl a fly on the higher the Shannon at Killaloe, this and a few sinkles" may not be misplaced, especially as and some magazines, at least quoad Scot- o the fish high up the river, say the oppo- e "curd" of salmon is a good test of its t is the calligash or calipee of the salmon; eculiar albuminous or delicate "fat," I fr. Buckland of the "Guards," would call it, e excellent condition of the fish. The great cret in Ireland is to secure this "curd." st al fresco where the salmon is at once en killed, so as to secure the coagulation of en, is the grand thing. You get it at the rate, such as would have delighted Sir Hum- d all readers of the "Salmonia," but in other es it is recklessly wasted, especially by scoring n as one often sees it in Dublin or England. salmon is like drinking soda water or cham- preference a week after it is opened. You o salmon spring, and tell us the result—but also.—The Field.
