

all that Mozart has composed, abounds in passages of beautiful and touching melody, and while it inspires good singers, inspires them. The introduction is nobly conceived, and in every detail is perfect. Mr's anthem was rendered no less effectively, and fine duet and chorus, "By thee with bliss, from the Creation," ended the concert as agreeably as it an. The duet was assigned to Lady De Vere and Mahaffy, and no one could not refrain from admiring the excellent vocalism of the lady. After the "National Anthem" the audience separated, well pleased.

The music upon the whole was of a light and pleasing character, and, as we before stated, reflected the highest credit, as regarded selection, upon the taste and skill of Lady Dunraven, and the conductor, Mr. McDonoghue. The finale was in keeping with the denouement, and all retired highly pleased and delighted.

FRIDAY.

THE FOX HUNT.—A fox hunt having been determined on as the principal out-door employment for to-day, a numerous and well-appointed "field" met in front of the manor at eleven o'clock sharp. There were 10 red coats mustered, and a number of sporting characters desirous to join the "noble sport." Amongst those mounted were the Viscount Adare, the Marquis Beaumont, Viscount Crichton, and Mr. H. Herbert. There were also several ladies, including the Ladies Ingham and Miss Herbert. The start took place at half-past eleven o'clock, in presence of his Excellency, the Earl of Erne, and all the other visitors who did not remain in the party. Graigue, Russ, Croom, and Fanningstown were drawn, without finding, much to the disappointment of the sporting circle.

THE BALL AT THE MANOR.

Last evening the festivities long to be remembered by the quiet and happy villagers of Adare were brought to a brilliant and appropriate termination by a grand ball at the Manor, to which more than 300 of the gentry of Limerick, and the adjoining counties were invited. The preparations for the event were in every respect, on a scale commensurate with the wealth and social position of the Earl and Countess of Dunraven, and the distinguished character of their principal guests. His Excellency the Earl of Carlisle was present, and amongst those invited were—

The Earl and Countess of Limerick, Lady Alice Perry, Lord and Lady Inchiquin, the Hon. Misses O'Brien, Lord and Lady Clarina, the Right Worshipful the Mayor of Limerick, Hon. Isabella Massey, Hon. Mrs. Barton, H. Barton, Esq.; Lady Georgina Croker and the High Sheriff of the County of Limerick, T. Croker, Esq., and J. Croker, Esq.; Lord Lord Dunboyne, the Hon. Miss Butler, and the Hon. The tables were profusely covered with every season could afford, and in the most per-them as a memorial of our close and cordial union with your family of the past and present, and as an auspicious pledge of the continuance of that union during many future generations. We have the honour to subscribe ourselves, with great regard and esteem, your lordship's humble and obedient servants.

"Signed on behalf of the tenantry,
February 12th, 1862."

Lord Adare replied as follows:—

Gentlemen—I thank you most cordially for the address which you have just presented to me, and for the very beautiful piece of plate which accompany it.—The kindness of your expressions and the beauty of your gift, I feel far more than I can express. I trust, should God spare me to fill the responsible position to which you allude (but which, I pray, may be far distant), that the remembrance of this day may enable me, with God's blessing, to follow the example of my father and grandfather, and to do my utmost to promote the welfare of all around me. I feel that there are few ties so strong as those between a landlord and a tenantry who love each other; and I trust that the feeling of affectionate regard to my family which has prompted you all to show me such kindness, may never be diminished by any act of mine, but may, on the contrary, be strengthened each succeeding year that I am spared to live amongst you. I cannot have brighter examples both of landlord and tenant than are to be found in our own family and on this estate, where, for years, it has been the object of the landlord, by living amongst his people and developing the native talent so richly to be found in Ireland, to improve the condition of the people entrusted to his charge, and the result of such a high sense of duty is, I think, to be plainly seen in the assemblage before me, which, I am proud to believe, could not be surpassed in any country. Allow me to thank you again for your beautiful present, beautiful in taste and in execution, and which must ever form one of the brightest ornaments of our house. It will, I trust, be an heirloom of the Quins of Adare for many a long year; and though succeeding generations cannot fail to admit it as a beautiful specimen of workmanship, none can look upon it as I do, as a most valued proof of our affection. I pray that God may grant you all many happy years, and grant to me with each succeeding one that He may see fit to spare me, a deepening sense of my responsibilities, and strength to fulfil them.

A beautiful claret jug, together with an appropriate address, was next presented on behalf of the Welsh tenants, with a suitable address.

Viscount Adare returned the following reply:—

"GENTLEMEN—Yes you can well believe how touched and gratified I am at the proof you have given of your affection for our family, in undertaking so long a journey to present me with this beautiful piece of plate, which I thank you for with my whole heart. I am well aware that your attachment to my grandmother would of itself lead you all to look upon me with kindness; but I trust that if it pleases God to spare us all to become better acquainted, that you will continue to me that affection which the tenantry of the Dunraven estate have always felt for the Wyndham family. I know that my father and mother, and the tenantry of this estate join me in bidding you most heartily welcome to Adare Manor; and we trust your impression of Ireland may be sufficiently favourable to induce you to visit us at some future time. Allow me again to thank you most warmly for your beautiful present, which shall ever be carefully preserved in our family. I trust that you believe how deeply sensible I am of your kindness and how earnestly I hope that if it pleases God to spare us, each succeeding year may unite more closely that tie which has ever subsisted between landlord and tenant on the Dunraven property in Wales."

Some glees were then sung, and the Countess of Dunraven having performed some pieces on the organ, with admirable effect, the proceedings terminated.

REFRESHING TOILETTE REQUISITES.—Among the many luxuries of the present age none can be obtained possessing the manifold virtues of Oldridge's Balm of Columbia. If applied to the roots and body of the hair it imparts the most delightful coolness, with an agreeable fragrance of perfume. It also at this period of the season prevents the hair from falling off, or if already too thin, or turning grey, will prevent its further progress, and soon restore it again. Those who really desire to have beautiful hair, either with wave or curl, should use it daily. It is also celebrated for strengthening the hair, freeing it from scurf, and producing new hair, whiskers and moustache. No well regulated Nursery can dispense with it. Established upwards of thirty years. Price, 3s. 6d., 6s. and 11s. only.—C. and A. Oldridge, 22, Wellington-street, Strand, W. C.
