

SUBALTERN'S EXPENSES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE UNITED SERVICE GAZETTE.
 MR. EDITOR—As the letters under various signatures which have lately appeared in your paper, on the expenses to which subalterns are liable, seem to evince little knowledge of the subject I beg to forward a detailed estimate of such expenses, framed from data acquired during long service in that rank.
 In this estimate I assume that the individual to whose expenditure it refers is capable of exercising a strict economy, and that he has the good fortune of being a member of a regiment the affairs of which are conducted in conformity with the regulations of the service, and, moreover, who has to pay tailors' bills—the necessity for doing so. "A Regimental Officer" seems to ignore—as well as other contingent expenses, in the case of the fortunate youth whose expenses he indicates.
 I mention the character of the regiment advisedly, as a few years ago, and probably still in several corps, a monthly subscription was required from dining members of from six to fifteen shillings, in addition to the regular monthly subscription, according to rank, and in conformity with the Queen's Regulations.
 This extra subscription arose from the absence of due economy in the regimental arrangements, and chiefly, probably, from allowing charges against the mess fund which should have been paid by dining members as they were incurred.
 Necessary expenditure of an Ensign in an Infantry Regiment for a month of thirty days.

Band and mess fund	£	s	d
Messing, 30 days at 2s 9d.	9	8	9
Breakfast and lunch in his own room.	2	5	0
Servant.	1	5	0
Washing	0	10	0
Share of entertaining public guests	0	7	6
Wine on guest nights	0	10	0
Beer or Wine	0	15	0
Clothing self and servant, and repair of furniture and linen	2	12	6
Sundry charges, stamps and paper, subscriptions; &c. &c.	0	15	0
	10	18	9
30 days' Ensign's pay at 5s 3d	7	17	6
Deficit	£3	1	3

Now, I beg to challenge criticism on the amount of these items, and maintain that they are the lowest which a person in the position of a gentleman can confine his expenses to, practising a rigid economy without actually following the example of Benjamin Franklin, and breakfasting and lunching upon a penny roll and glass of water, or absolutely denying himself the slightest social recreation on occasions when guests are assembled at the mess-table. It is, indeed, on these occasions only that a military man in the colonies, or at home, when not frequently on leave of absence, has an opportunity of rubbing off that ton de garrison so offensive in some of the Continental armies, and which is to be so much deprecated in our own, or of acquiring those liberal ideas or general information so difficult to be attained by members of any profession constantly living by themselves.

In a future letter I will give a detailed estimate of expense of raising the pay of the subaltern to what I conceive is a proper standard, and, in the meantime, I earnestly hope that no one not fully acquainted by experience with the subject will address letters to your paper, or to other military papers, on the expenses of subalterns.

AN OLD OFFICER.

Chatham, July 3, 1863.

REMEDY FOR HYDROPHOBIA.—At the Cork police office Mr. Mulllan, J. P., said that he had received a letter from a lady a member of the Society of Friends, which, he thought, it would be well if the members of the Press took notice of it. The lady was prompted to write the letter owing to the many cases of hydrophobia which had lately appeared in the papers. The remedy was "simply, washing powder put into the wound, or to dissolve a strong solution in hot water, and keep a hot cloth till the irritation subdues entirely. United with this, if the patient, would take at once the white of a fresh egg beat up well, then add a lump of white sugar, and a wine glass of cold water; mix together, to be taken for three times per day for two or three days, I believe by so doing, there would be every reason to hope that the result would be quite favourable. Of course I don't wish my name to be brought to public view; but I do wish this simple and safe remedy could be widely made known."

No. 4 Committee of the Corporation will be prepared to appoint 4 Supernumerary Watchmen, age not to exceed 28 years.
 The candidates will be in attendance with testimonials of character &c., on Tuesday next the 21st Instant, at 2 o'Clock.
