

Militia Office, Dublin Castle, March 25, 1863.

Officers commanding regiments of Militia in Ireland will be pleased to issue orders to the effect that all the blocks and fittings which are sent to regiments in the arm chests, and which are necessary for the security and preservation of the rifles, when in transit, shall be placed within the same arm chest from which they were taken, immediately after the removal of the rifles, in order that when the arms are required to be repacked all the fittings specially belonging to each arm chest may be found within it—the fittings of one chest in very many cases not being applicable to another. By Command of His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant.

E. S. SMYTH,
Colonel, Inspector General of Militia.

The Rev. Edward O'Grady, Vicar of Mungret, will preach at St. Michael's Church to-morrow. Rev. Charles Hare will preach on Thursday evening.
