Mr. Orme, R.M., examined by Sergeant Armstrong —I am not quite two years resident, magistrate in Belfast; I know the borough boundaries generally; there is a number of borough justices; about a dozen; they are all country magistrates; knows the Mayor very well; there are petty sessions every day in the week, and there is a common court for the whole town; I preside there daily, and there are generally one, or two, or three of the local magistrates associated with me; the Mayor and Mr. Lyons and others generally act with me; there are about 160 local police, who are appointed by the Town Council; I think all the magistrates warrants go through the constabulary; I am not in the habit of calling in the aid of the local police; they are employed looking after the town; I should say they have their beats; I should say there is a night force of the same body; there are seven constabulary stations in Belfast; I don't know whether the Mayor is a magistrate of the town.
 Mr. Commissioner Dowse—A magistrate for the borough is a county magistrate.
 Mr. Commissioner Barry—The Mayor is a magistrate of the borough in his ex-officio capacity.
 Examination continued—I understand there is a certain amount of discipline among the local force; there are two chief-constables, Green and M'Kittrick; I know nothing of their remuneration; at the constabulary stations there are about 6 men at each; there are more at the Albert Crescent station, which is between the Sandy-row and Pound district; there are no police stations for the local force, except at Police-office Square; on an emergency, there is no place where a dozen of the local force could be found, that I am aware of; any reports that come to me, come through the constabulary; the local police are not in my department, directly or indirectly; I have never interfered with them; I should say they are under the control of the Town Council and their officers, M'Kittrick and Green; never saw any code of regulations as regards the local police; as far as I can say, the population is about 140,000.
 Mr. Commissioner Barry—According to the census, there is 120,545.
 Witness—Yes, but the increase has been rapid since 1861. There are more than a dozen magistrates in Belfast. The 12th of July last, and the 12th of July, 1863, and the marriage of the Prince of Wales, were the occasions of riots (A laugh). My brother magistrates came to my assistance; I was not here at the time of a meeting in the Botanic Gardens; there is a depot battalion stationed here, and there is usually 500 men available; that number was not available on the last occasion, for they were sending away drafts; there is also usually a troop of cavalry; it is the duty of the sub-inspector, or any other constabulary officer, to report to me when occasion requires it; I don't know that there is such a rule with the local force; I would have the constabulary stations more allocated through the town amongst the disturbed districts, which is about three miles in circumference.
 To Mr Commissioner Dowse—It is about a third of the whole town.
 To Sergeant Armstrong—I could not tell how many of the local police are on the beat daily in the disturbed district; I see them there; their uniform is blue and they wear round hats; there are two or three constabulary stations in the disturbed district in the usual state of things before the riots; I should say it is well known to the local force that I am the resident magistrate; I got no report in writing from the chief constables; but from the beginning of the riots the 8th of August, they put themselves in communication with me; I got intimation of the riot from, I think Head-Constable Rankin, and on repairing to the Boyne-bridge it was all over; I saw M'Kit-trick; the crowd were scattering; I can't say on that evening, but certainly on the next evening the 9th, I saw the mayor in that locality; this is my report to Government to refresh my memory as to dates; there were about twenty of the constabulary with me, and more than a dozen local police. The witness stated that he here consulted the Mayor, and he acquiesced in the necessity for calling in 150 additional men to preserve the peace; forwarded a requisition to that effect; there was not then a sufficient force in town to preserve the peace; saw Mr Lyons about the 13th; the party spirit was of a like character to what I had previously seen; the Mayor and I met in the district near the Boyne Bridge; it was not by arrangement; on the former occasions there was always additional force called in with the sanction of the Mayor—generally about 200 men; I was not actively engaged during the whole time; the first week's work knocked me up; I was struck with stones; the first was by the Sandy row party and the Pound; both sides are very violent; the Sandy row are the Orange party; I don't think I saw the Mayor the night after I signed the requisition; I saw him on the 11th, and I think he went away that evening when the additional force arrived; when speaking on a visit to Viscount and Viscountess Gort.

 Intelligence has been received of the death, at El-lerslie, in Jamaica, of the Hon. Emily Price, wife of Mr. George Price, and daughter of Edward, 14th Bar-

 September.

 ble amount revert to several persons in Limerick.
 It is reported that Mr. Murphy, one of the present resign, if he can legally retire on a pension.

 Ballinamona; Monday, 21st, Ballinvarra.
 The Limerick harriers will meet for November as follows:—Thursday, 17, Killonan; Monday, 21, Roxboro; Thursday, 24, Ballysimon; Monday, 28,

 The County Limerick Hounds (Mr. Roche's) will meet for November as follows:—Friday, 18th, Castle-towna Waller.—Hour—11 o'clock.
 INQUEST.—An inquest was held on yesterday in Rossbrien, by Thomas Costelloe, Esq., one of the County Coroners', on view of the body of a man named William Molony, aged 84 years, who was found dead in the cottage in which he resided on Friday last. It appeared that the deceased was in possession of a small cottage and a considerable plot of ground which he tilled, and upon the produce of which he lived.
 He had no wife, she having died several years ago—neither had he any children, or anyone living with him, the sole companion of his loneliness being a cat; he had not made his appearance for a couple of days, and the neighbours fearing something had happened to him burst in the door, and they discovered the poor old fellow stretched dead across the hearthstone, and his nose and lips and a portion of his shoulder gnawed away by the cat. Dr. Elmes, who made a post mortem examination, stated that the deceased died from natural causes. Nature was exhausted, and the old man having no one to nurture or care him succumbed, and died in the way described. The neighbours caught the cat and terminated its existence.
 ACCIDENT.—A man of the name of Daniel Keefe, by trade a mason, who was at work on the new building erecting by the Christian Brothers in Sexton-street, fell off the scaffold, on yesterday evening, and received concussion of the brain. He was conveyed at once to Barrington's Hospital, where medical aid was at once rendered, but it did not avail as the poor fellow died at 11 o'clock last night. He never spoke one word from the time the accident happened, and breathed his last in silence.
 A young lad named Patrick Connell, employed in Mr Dawson's bakery, accidentally slipped one of his legs into the barn vat and was fearfully burned. He is now progressing favourably in Barrington's Hospital.
 The last fatal scene in the case of Muller, which created such excitement throughout the kingdom, has now passed. He was executed yesterday morning at the Old Bailey, in presence of 100,000 persons. Up to the moment before the bolt was drawn which was to launch him into eternity, and with the rope adjusted, he proclaimed his innocence of the murder of Mr.
 Briggs, but, pressed to a candid confession by the German clergyman who attended him and held his hand on the scaffold, he ultimately admitted his guilt. It will be a relief to the jury, to the judge, to the witnesses, to the Home Secretary, and even to his own advocates, that Muller spoke at last. The details of his act are a mystery, but the few brief words he uttered are enough.
 It is said the expenses of the Muller trial incurred by Government were about £700, and the German Defence Association £300.
 The trial of the celebrated divorce case, Codrington instant.

 The reading room of the Limerick Athenaeum is in ITALIAN SCULPTURE.—The sale of these very beautiful specimens of Italian art will be offered for public competition by Mr. Bernal, at his Sales-Room, to-morrow, at 12 o'clock, when, we have no doubt, from the numbers who have been daily calling to see them that there will be a very large and fashionable attendance. Any time we gave for this purpose was amply repaid by such display of exquisite taste applied to manufacture.

 A valuable large pane of plate glass was accidentally broken in the shop front of the establishment of Cannock, Tait, & Co., George-street, on Saturday night.

men able to bear arms. No immediate use can be found for such a number, nor could the fire be drained suddenly of all the best hands; but the difficulty in calling at once 150,000 men well readily see what its issue would have been Few Northerners assert that they can continue finitely to run into debt at the present rate of millions sterling per month. We could not do nor yet France; and the wealth of the North is when compared with that of either country.

 The knowledge of this movement on the part North that caused so great an advance in the gold at New-York. The failure of Grant's long tated blow would not have produced such an effect.
 The Times contains letters from its correspondents at Richmond. They are not, however, of date. On the 24th September the writer says see no reason to think that there will be any in the position of affairs before Petersburg during coming winter unless it be possible that Lee fall back to the west bank of the Appomatox, and the fine defensive position afforded by the hills line the left bank of that stream.
 MULLER.
 The Times says the paper Muller prepared days before his execution came into the hands sheriffs on Sunday night. This, it is said, was confession, but was, on the contrary, little else what has already been made public at different by the German Protection Society. In consequence of the confession actually made by Muller, it is stood that the sheriffs do not consider it just to persons referred to in the paper to make any it—that they sealed the document, and will bably, make some communication to the Committee of Aldermen in reference to it to-day.

 MONETARY AND COMMERCIAL.
 (From the Daily News.)
 In the discount market yesterday the supply of money was large, and good bills were taken at 7 1/4 per cent. The slight reaction on the Exchange yesterday was occasioned by the receipt somewhat lower prices from the Paris Bourse, with rumours of large failures on the continent which, however, close enquiries failed to find adequate foundation.
 (From the Times.)
 There was scarcely any discount demand at bank yesterday. The suspension has been announcied by Messrs. Henry Powell and Sons, of London Galatz, with liabilities for about £150,000.
 The disaster is said to have been caused by commitments entered into by the partner at Galatz, and to come upon the London house as a total surprise.
 The regular trade of the firm was chiefly in grain, they have held from time to time large and profitable contracts for the supply of provisions to the governments. The probable result of the liquidation cannot be estimated until the extent and nature of the Galatz operations shall have been ascertained, but there is reason to hope it may be favorable.
 The London house is an old and respectable one; and owing to the character of the London partners endeavor will probably be made to enable them to continue the business under inspection.
 The Egyptian loan was introduced yesterday noon. The amount is £5,704,260 sterling, in 100 cent bonds, with interest from 1st October last, the subscription price is 93. The instalments extending to the 1st April next.
