

There was no act or expression which appeared to show that he sympathized or reacted with Fenianism. He would be the evidence or rather the statement of a magistrate of the city of Limerick who was then in court, and who had especially that day to give his client the good character. With these observations leave the case in the hands of the merely to observe that his client had on the day in question on some business which required his presence in Ennis. Howard, solicitor, said that he was to have advised Mr. O'Connor to come that day for the purpose of arranging an Ennis man.

Sub Inspector, said that he had to be made relative to the character of in Limerick, and the account he related had not been suspected of being a Fenianism.

Phayer, J.P., who had shortly before court from Limerick, stated that he considered to be a young man of very good also a loyal subject.

It was fortunate for the prisoner to have a good character, as they should deal harshly with him. Under the however, he should find bail to be of for the future.

It was suggested that Mr. Phayer should be asked, when that gentleman observed that sureties of £10 each, and the prisoner's office, to which the court agreed.

It was said it was lucky enough for the prisoner to have so good a character, as otherwise enforcing the law in the case.

It was said having been provided, the young man was discharged.

Murphy, a sergeant on pension, was with striking her on several occasions turning her out of doors.

It was only conducted the prosecution, and admitted that he had struck his wife, rating circumstances.

It was said to find bail to keep the peace for 10, and two sureties of £5 each, or two months. The bail was subscribed.

Mr. Hynes, M. Molony, and Mr. Phayer, were the solicitors engaged in the case.

It was said some were fined in various penalties, to 5s.

Donohue, a teacher of mathematics, summoned by the Inspector of nuisances, having used some in reference to the Town Commissioners having ordered a summons to issue he alleged his yard was kept in a filthy state, and having suffered himself by his feelings into a violence of the bench considered amounted to a nuisance, was ordered to pay a fine of 5s and costs, and then given in charge to the contempt of court; but subsequently of Mr. Bunton, and Mr. Phayer, stated that if he had used any other bench thought disrespectful, he was discharged.

The Pall Mall Gazette protests against the interference of the United States in the administration of justice to the Fenian prisoners, and says that if England is to take orders from Washington, in all matters relating to Canada, the colony will not be worth retaining. The Gazette thinks it would be better to make a stand against this dictation at once, at the risk of war, than to wait for twenty years, with the certainty that in the end the position would not be improved. In the opinion of the writer, the prisoners ought to be hanged, as Fenianism is too serious a matter to treat lightly.
