Charitable Appeal.

A RESPECTABLE Tradesman, well known in Limerick for his upright and honest character, having died within the present month leaving a helpless family, consisting of five young children, his widow is induced, by the advice of a few charitable and respectable persons, to appeal to the sympathy of a generous public, who, she feels certain, were they aware of the deep misery into which she has been suddenly plunged, would have no hesitation in contributing, no matter how small a sum, to alleviate her distress. She would also wish to state that she makes this appeal with the sole object that by means of some industry, she may be enabled to keep herself and family from being consigned to workhouse, to become a burden on the rate.

Contributions, however small, will be thankfully received at the LIMERICK CHARITABLE OFFICE.
