

THE Annual Meeting of the Society, will be held at the Orphan Hall, on FRIDAY A Deputation from the Parents of the Orphan Asylum, will be taken at 7.30. Nov. 24. Rev B.

The Hall Brunswick

THE GOSPEL will be preached by T. SHULDAM HEN evening the 28th inst, at half past THURSDAY, the 29th inst, and half past seven o'clock. p.m. DAY, the 30th instant at 12 o'clock past 7 p.m.

"Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money, and he that hath no price, buy wine, and without price." Incline your ear and come unto your soul shall live.—Isaiah 55. November 24. E. White

Public Meeting

DR. LEES, of Manchester, and Henry Gale, D.C.L., Rector (Somerset), and T. W. Russell, will read a paper in the Theatre Royal, Friday Evening Next, the 30th inst, to be taken at 8 o'clock.

SUBJECTS—

The Permissive Bill—Closing of the Rooms, and the Establishment Rooms, Nov. 24. J. Jacob

To the Burgesses of the GENTLEMEN,—I have only to say that I retire by rotation from Town Councillor for the Dock Ward election will take place on Monday. I trust, therefore, you will excuse a personal canvass, and favour me with your confidence.

Your obedient servant JAMES

Nov. 24.

COLOUR STAMP

CRESTS, MONOGRAMS, AND Embossed in Brilliant Colours on I and Envelopes. Steel Dies sunk in competent Stationers of every description. Z. M. LEDGER & S Booksellers & Stationers 27, George-street, Limerick. October 23.

Visiting Governess

A LADY, experienced in teaching, is desirous of being engaged as a Public Teacher at her own residence of the pupils. She is in English, French, Italian and Music, and is a native of the Continent. Her system of instruction is very much approved of.

Letters addressed A. M. K., Visiting Governess, 27, George-street, Limerick, shall be attended to. Nov. 24.

Wants a Situation.

A YOUNG man, who has a thorough knowledge of the Groceries, Wine and Spirit trade, and is a perfect accountant, would accept of an office as Bookkeeper, and has been 15 year employed; the highest reference as to his character and competency can be given. Apply to S. T. CHRONICLE Office.

Groom or Coachman.

WANTS a situation as above, a steady young man who is thoroughly understood in the care of hunters and his appointments; the training and management of horses; understands riding with ladies; and is a practical advertiser will stand the strictest scrutiny. Apply H. N., office of this Paper, for a further information.

be sullied—a robe I trust that never will be stained while under the care of one who has deeply the interest of your city at heart, and who has and will continue to do everything for its advancement (more cheering). Gentlemen, as I told you, Mr. Spaight insulted me at the Treasury. Now comes the grand test of all. He stated that I was not the chairman of the Harbour Board; but that dignified and noble Englishman, Mr. Hunt, I believe a member of the English bar, at once put this straight question—what think you was it?—If the Mayor of Limerick is present at the meetings of the Harbour Board does he on all occasions take the chair? And that vile man (Mr. Spaight) stated he admitted it was so. Mr. Hunt then asked me to state my case. I got precedence; I stated my case, and now we come to the point of it that will be for you to decide whether I acted for your interests, or whether I did not; and that is with reference to the transfer of £10,000 from the port to the bridge. I have now to defend before you the position I have taken up on that occasion. At the meeting of the Harbour Board the tariff of the harbour dues was distinctly settled; item by item it was gone into; item by item it was penned down by Mr. James Spaight, Mr. William Spaight, Mr. Richard Russell, and the Mayor of Limerick. There was only one point, and one only, that we had the slightest difference upon, and that was with reference to the dues on foreign shipping with corn. I stated, and I am not ashamed to state that the people had an interest in the progress of trade, and in the advancement of everything that was good and noble. I observed that 3d. off the tonnage of foreign corn should be withdrawn. I was opposed by Mr. William Spaight, Mr. James Spaight, Mr. Richard Russell, and the only member who supported the proposition I made was one who is occupied in the interests of foreign shipping, Mr. Michael R. Ryan. I saw Mr. Richard Power there, and Alderman Quinlivan, who stated most emphatically and in the strongest terms that language could convey, that if you took that off foreign ships it would not benefit the city one farthing.

Alderman Quinlivan—Excuse me, I argued the point along with you at the first, but I was not at the second meeting.

Mayor—Very well. I said then that if Lord Naas, who came down to the Munster Fair to buy horses, could get any better terms for the Harbour Board, and for the citizens of Limerick, it should be devoted to the taking off that 3d. per ton on foreign corn. That 3d. per ton on foreign ships, at the charge of last year, would be about £370 or £375 a year, and that would be the interest which we would have to pay on £10,000. When we went to the Treasury I understood that I went there as the representative of the citizens (cries of Yes, yes). I wasn't aware that any gentleman at that public meeting required that I should go there to represent the interests of the Steamship Company (no, no). I thought I was to represent the citizens, and on that ground I went, and I said, "I won't have £10,000 taken off the harbour and put on the bridge." You will naturally ask me why? This is the whole question. On every Sunday since the bridge was opened it was cheerful and delightful to see the artizan and his wife, the trader, the poor shopkeeper, and the people of my own class taking advantage of the fresh air there. I said to myself, by keeping on the bridge only £10,000, single handed I will free it for the citizens (tremendous cheering, and the waving of hats for several seconds). I said that James Spaight has only an interest in his rotten ships. But how degraded, how disreputable, how unworthy would be your Chief Magistrate if he went over to London to do anything there except for you. What is it to me if the bridge were never opened?—What is it to me if the Harbour Debt were never swept away? Do you think I would eat the smaller dinner or drink the less of wine, or that it would affect my business to the extent of a shilling? But who are interested? Think you would I not be deserving of being pulled out of this chair, if I did not represent the people you sent me to represent? I don't care if you kick me out it would not degrade me the more; I occupy a high commercial position in London. I was told, and I regretted to hear the story, of one gentleman who used to give a £5 note, say he would not give a farthing, for that the money the Mayor gave at the relief meeting was for a base political dodge. (Cries of No, no, and Shame). His worship asked if that would cause him to feed the hungry, clothe the naked, administer comfort to the sick poor the less, supposing that he was the most worthless, the most wretched, the most degraded political creature in the world? But he would vindicate his fellow citizens. He stated on a former occasion that at the first opportunity that offered he would place his political services at their the Mayor had not taken up the question of the Limerick Harbour debt, they would be saddled with it for another year (hear, hear.) While they were debating at the Harbour Board they were losing time, and the day for posting the notice would have passed off only for the action of the Mayor, who had neglected his own business for the benefit of the citizens, and to carry out the instructions he got at the public meeting. He concluded by moving the first resolution which with the others will be published in our next.

Mr. M'Mahon seconded the resolution which was unanimously agreed to.

Mr. Barry, T.C., moved the next resolution, and condemned the conduct of Mr. Spaight and Mr. Russell in very warm terms.

Several other resolutions were proposed and adopted.

The Mayor, in acknowledging a vote of thanks to him, referred to the Harbour election, and accused Mr. Phillips of voting for himself four times. He said he had counsel's opinion to shew the election of several gentlemen was null and void, but he did not like to act on it as there would shortly be a new Board. He also added that he had counsel's opinion in approval of the course he took on the water question, and that he would see to the people having their rights awarded to them. He concluded by saying he hoped to be able to give an answer on the 1st of December, with regard to the Mayoralty, that would be satisfactory to them.

The meeting then ended.

BIRTHS.

- At Francis-street, Killrush, on the 21st instant, the wife of Michael Glynn, Esq., of a daughter. At South Main-street, Cork, the wife of Edward Mulcahy, Esq., of a daughter. The wife of Mr. Edmond MacSweeney, clerk of the Union, Kiltarnney, of a daughter. At Northville, Maryborough, Queen's County, the wife of Mr. H. Jamieson, of a daughter. At Kingstown, county Dublin, the wife of Hamilton Croft, Esq., of twins—son and daughter. The wife of Mr. John O'Sullivan, Bayview-avenue, Dublin, of a son. At the Rectory, Johnstown, county Kilkenny, the wife of Robert U. Townsend, Esq., of Johnstown Cottage, Glounthaune, of a daughter. At Kilkenny, the wife of Richard Domenichetti, M.D., Surgeon-Major 75th (Stirlingshire) Regt., of a son. At Diamond, Clones, Mrs. Edwin Beatty, of a son. At Belmont, Carrickfergus, the wife of Marriott Robert Dalway, Esq., jun., of Bella Hill, county Antrim, of a daughter.

MARRIAGES.

- Owen Phibbs, Esq., eldest son of William Phibbs, Esq., of Seafeld, county Sligo, to Susan Elizabeth, third daughter of William Talbot Crosbie, Esq., of Ardert Abbey, county Kerry. At Aughadown Church, George William Hughes, Esq., to Charlotte Frances Proctor, daughter of the late Edward Townsend, Esq., of White Hall, county Cork. At Booterstown Church, county Dublin, the Rev. Charles Crowe, Drumsnatt, county Monaghan, to Fanny Young, daughter of the late James FitzGerald, Esq., Clonavilla, co. Monaghan. In Dublin, M. Conway Poole, Esq., Madras Staff Corps, Superintendent of Police, British Bazaar, to Azelia Frances, daughter of Thomas Thompson, Esq., J.P., D.L., of Holywoodrath, county Dublin. At St. James's Church, and afterwards at the Roman Catholic Church, Croyden, Surrey, near London, Charles C. Bearshaw, Esq., Bromley, Sheffield, to Frances Carroll, daughter of James Dempster, Esq., M.D., Tipperary Artillery, Clonmel. At Farnborough Church, Henry Raymond Pelly, Captain Royal Engineers, to Frances, daughter of the late George Ferguson, Esq., of Houghton Hall, Cumberland, and step-daughter of Colonel Arthur Herbert, A.Q.M.G., Aldershot.

DEATHS.

- On the 22nd inst., at Heathfield, Anne, the beloved wife of Edward Lloyd, Esq., J.P. She died, after a protracted illness, in perfect peace, resting on the finished work of Jesus. This morning, at Cahircionish, after a few days' illness, Alicia, relict of George Keays, Esq., very much regretted by her family and numerous friends. Interment at one o'clock on Monday, at Abington Church. On the 22nd inst., at his residence, Hull, Thomas Colgan, Esq., merchant, and Spanish Vice-Consul, son of the late James Colgan, Esq., of this city. On Thursday, in William-street, of disease of the heart, Rebecca, daughter of William Purcell, Esq., T.C. At her father's residence, Mallow, county Cork, Theodosia Isabella, eldest daughter of Richard Gethin Cooté, Esq., late Captain of H.M.'s 54th Regt. At Harristown, county Kilkenny, Edward Whitby Briscoe, Esq., J.P. At Mountjoy-square, Dublin, Margaret Emily, wife of N. M. Power, Esq., Faithlegg, county Waterford. At the Lower Castle Yard, Dublin, Eliza Jane, daughter of Inspector Armstrong, A-Division, Metropolitan Police. At Summer-hill, Dublin, William Flaherty, Esq., late assistant warehouse-keeper, Inland Revenue, Custom-house, Dublin. At Albert-street, Regent's-park, London, the Rev. Edward Pakenham Thompson, rector of Myross, county Cork. At Christ Church, Oxford, the Rev. Walter Waddington Shilley, D.D., Canon of Christ Church. At Moreton-Pinkney Manor, Northamptonshire, the Hon. Sarah Sempill, daughter of the Right Hon. Hugh, 14th Lord Sempill. At Theresa-place, Hammersmith, John Lewis White, late Captain 68th Regt.

few hours will restore me to and so we proceeded to London arrived there at 7 o'clock (cheers). What did I then do instead of going to my many matters of pressing importance, I went direct to the Naas, to see if he had got any news. He had gone back to a letter that night informing me, and requesting of him as to what time he might be proceeding with me to the Treasury, and I saw the English gentleman, the As-I had come there as I was, that I found he had gone to the Naas would meet Council the following day has made an appointment you, Mr. Spaight, and subject of the Harbour Debt, be in London to attend a day I knew it was of his business arrangements, the Irish Office, where I saw the Secretary, who received me respectfully. He stated that he called for that day at 12 o'clock, occupy Lord Naas's time, but that I would leave it to him to make an appointment of Limerick would be at ten o'clock that night Lord Naas stating that it was his satisfaction to meet the following day. that appointment? (No, there at a quarter past No, I was there to the result of that interview I received me kindly and to me that the better terms than he said he had a letter at he would be probably, or the day after that. me "the moment Mr. communicate with you, and together." That was on I come back to the last day, and if you will allow me to call it the "Spaight Land cheering). I think and what I called that not interrupt me, I will speak language "The rest and retreat." Gentlemen, either any of you are any, or whether any of what is designated the hat is the 9th of the morning, got out of the window blind, and the situation of me in the distance mistakable fog. I saw a ball of fire directed to my good wife, this if you allow me I will rest daughters and show used to view, and more the honour of being the my home without my and my servants, and I at my office at half London, telegraphed me back-I heard from that if I wished to v he would place rooms affording the city of London.— decorated with to pass, and while so in which you all are said to my good wife, tive knowledge from ever presided and rough life, tells me ceed at once to the a won't be afraid of e gentleman to order ven't mind my going iven your birth,—the was buried,—where beneath the sobs of id she, "anything ll submit to.—Go!"