Death has taken away from the Parisian world M. de Barante, the Academician, and author of the "Histoire des Ducs de Bourgogne."

■ In the course of the recent excavations made in the Court of the Louvre the workmen came upon the foundations of the fortress built by Philip Augustus. This sovereign considerably enlarged Paris.

"Gentlemen of the jury"! Said an American lawyer, "Would you set a rat-trap to catch a bear? Would you make fools of yourselves by endeavouring to spear a buffalo with a knitting needle? No, gentlemen, I am sure you would not. Then how can you be guilty of the gross absurdity of finding my client guilty of manslaughter for taking the life of a woman!"

INTERESTING STATISTICS.—Of six hundred and twelve young ladies who fainted last year, more than one half of them fell into the arms of gentlemen, only three had the misfortune to fall on the floor.
