

Sheridan was enthusiastically received at the public banquet. Governor Brounlow is authorized the swearing of hundreds of men to oppose them. A serious apprehended. General Grant has ordered arms not to interfere at present. General Grant has ordered arms not to interfere at present. General Grant has ordered arms not to interfere at present.

accounts published in Rome, October 6, the engagement between the Garibaldian troops at Bagnorea state that the who had occupied the town for the last were driven out by the Pontifical Zouaves, and routed them completely, after two fighting. The Garibaldians are said to have killed 500 men, of whom 70 were killed, and 110 made prisoners, while the only a few wounded.

from the Papal frontier state that the insurgents in the province of Viterbo has increased. They are divided into three which are daily receiving reinforcements, and led by the inhabitants. Insurgents have appearance between the towns of Orte and and others, coming from Fara, have been Neroli.

Review says it is generally understood sport of the debates of the Anglo-Ecumenical, as it calls the last meeting of Bishops, published.

session was concluded at Berlin on the 19th for last, for the purpose of settling the private of the Duke of Nassau. Duke Adolphus for ever all claim to sovereign rights in the of Nassau, in consideration of a sum of 0 florins, paid to him by the King of Prussia receiving this sum the duke will retain session the palaces of Biberich, Wibelbourg, and the Chapelle-Russe, as well as the domain and the estates of Koenigstein.

has published a proclamation violently Signor Ratazzi, and continuing to counsel France of Rome. The Opinione denies the of some Italian and French papers that the States Legation in that city had officially against the arrest of Garibaldi, on the of his being an American citizen. The says that in compliance with the wish of Garibaldi's friends, the Legation took some steps to ameliorate the general's position of Alessandria, but did not follow them learned that Garibaldi was not only treated by indulgence, but had been sent back to Accounts received there from the Papal of Viterbo announce that the insurgents entered Bagnorea, which has been re-occupied Pontifical Zouaves.

ence of the persons implicated in the out-Manchester was concluded on Saturday, and men were committed for trial on the charge of murder, the magistrates refusing to accept in the cases of those who had called wit-to prove an alibi. On Friday night the men- the 40th Middlesex Rifle Volunteer Corps under arms, in their armouries in Gray's Inn- Gray's Inn-square, in anticipation of an by Fenians. The police authorities had such information as led them to place a very of men on duty, and to keep all night a serve in readiness to act at a moment's

All the arms have been removed to ver. M'Donnell, the Guardsman who was shot onsbury, London, on the 23th ult., died on night.

DUBLIN, OCTOBER 8.

THE GAME LAWS.

to a querist, a correspondent of the Far-Gazette supplies the following information in ce to the game laws:—

to queries of "A Dungarvan Subscriber," appeared in your issue of the 23th September, e to small farmers taking out licences to shoot I beg to say that in Ireland the fact of taking game certificate confers no right to kill game, the possessor of it is duly qualified. The 10 III., c. 8, s. 8, provides that no person or per- having a freehold estate of £40 per annum, or al estate to the value of £1,000, shall shoot at, take, or destroy any hare or hares, partridges, quots, grouse, or quail, under a penalty for each a of 10s.; and the 13th Richard II., c. 13, pro-administered, and the deeply solemn ceremony was brought to a close.

The episcopal seal, which has been executed for the new Bishop, by Mr. Bryson, of Nassau-street, is a beautiful specimen of art engraving, surpassing even the many similar works which have been prepared by him. We understand that Mr. Bryson was also favoured with the order for the episcopal signet ring, which is of exceedingly chaste design, being in strict keeping with the Gothic character of the seal. All the work has been executed in Dublin, under Mr. Bryson's own supervision.—Express.

Earl Russell, it now appears, was during his recent visit to Belfast invited by a number of gentlemen to a public banquet which they proposed to get up in his honour. The offer was conveyed through Mr. Thomas M'Clure. The invitation, as might almost have been anticipated, was declined; and although the desirability of learning his lordship's views in regard to "the great Irish questions which demand the immediate attention of the Legislature" is more than hinted at in Mr. M'Clure's letter, Earl Russell avoids giving anything like an expression of his opinion on any of these questions by saying that all of them "require to be further examined and discussed before they can assume a shape in which they can be adopted by Parliament." In short, his lordship, who concludes his epistle by lauding the administration of the laws by the present Government, is of opinion that none of "the great Irish questions" which whilom "demanded the immediate attention of the Legislature" are yet ripe for legislation. We are glad to learn that the rumour of the noble lord's serious illness had no foundation except in the fact that he had contracted a slight cold, from the effects of which, however, he has now recovered.—Express.

CRUEL CONDUCT OF WORK HOUSE INMATES.

The Wexford correspondent of the Daily Express writing from Wexford on Saturday says—"A respectable old man named John Sparrow, who had been elected by the Protestant chaplain to attend in the vestry, has been the object of a cruel and cowardly attack, which may probably result in leaving him maimed during life, his foot having been broken by a fall given him by one of the party consisting chiefly of grown up boys, in the house who attacked him—Frederick Bell, Walsh, James Kinsellah, James Cleary, James, and Robert McGrath, irritated the poor old Sparrow, by pushing at the vestry door. This however was not sufficient, they laid a trap for him, by placing forms across the yard where he was supposed to have to pass, in order to upset him. This plot fortunately proved unsuccessful, but the old man was nevertheless, subjected to most grievous treatment. One of his tormentors rushed at him, tripped him up, and knocked him upon the ground, breaking his ankle in the fall. No doubt, it will be matter for surprise how this could happen in such a well regulated institution as the Wexford workhouse, for such was admittedly its character up to this occurrence. The only punishment which the guardians thought proper to inflict upon them was to discharge them from the workhouse, with an admonition to be of better conduct in future. I should state that one of them has been committed to gaol on a magistrate's warrant, though not for being condemned in this offence; that is Frederick Bell. Bell had been in the militia for several years. He threatened on Friday to stab any of the officers who should attempt to remove him, and accordingly the police were called in to remove him.

BALLINASLOE FAIR.

On Saturday the second day of the sheep fair, opened most unpropitiously. Heavy showers continued without cessation, and a more disagreeable spectacle than the fair presented has seldom been witnessed at Ballinasloe. Pinnioned in groups adjacent to each other, many lots of sheep awaited their inspection and probable disposal by numerous buyers who for a time appeared to look indifferently on the scene. Matters changed, however, as the morning advanced, and the apparent determination on the part of the sellers not to yield had the effect of not only making business somewhat brisk, but of enforcing an increase on the prices of the previous day. The exhibition of sheep on Friday morning comprised not only those unsold yesterday, but also considerable numbers which had been held back in anticipation of an advance in rates. There was a demand for waddlers, and the supply being shorter than on Friday, the prices rose accordingly. There was an advance of from half-a-crown to four shillings per head on Friday's prices. Ewes were also in fair request, and were bought up briskly at a slight advance. Towards

All post-office orders and letters of credit and communications generally, to the CHRONICLE are to be addressed to the Proprietors, MRS. SARAH BASSETT, or WILLIAM HOSFORD.

No communication whatever will be attended to unless authenticated by signatures of the writer as guarantee for accuracy, but not for publication.

Advertisements intended for publication in the LIMERICK CHRONICLE should be sent to the office before 12 o'clock on Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays, otherwise they will be late for insertion.

THE LIMERICK CHRONICLE

TUESDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 8, 1867.

It is with regret we announce the death of William Rowley, Esq., D.L., at his residence, Rich Hill, on yesterday. The deceased gentleman who was the brother of the late Sergeant Sir John Howley, Q.C., was highly respected both in the city and county. He belonged to a generation which has passed away, and was a prominent man in politics along with the late Alderman Watson, J. N. Russell, Lord Mont-eagle, Alderman Gabbett, and other leading men, when party politics ran high in the city, but like those we name he was highly respected for unswerving principle, and those high qualities which adorn the Irish gentleman.

FENIAN DEMONSTRATION IN LIMERICK.

On Sunday last a remarkable Fenian display was witnessed in this city, and which, for boldness and extent of numbers, excelled that made at the funeral of the man Crowley, who was killed in the wood near Mitchelstown last summer, when M'Clure and Kelly were arrested, and which shews that the spirit of disaffection still strongly pervades the populace, and that Fenianism is as rife amongst them as it was a year ago. It appears that a young man named Kelly, a porter, or handy man in the employment of the Corporation Gas Works, was arrested about twelve months ago along with another batch of Fenians by the late Sub-Inspector Channer, assisted by a force of police, and with them taken to the county gaol, where he remained till the spring assizes, and having been brought before Judge O'Brien, was with seven or eight others discharged with a caution as the Government had not sufficient evidence to try the a cused upon. It is stated on reliable authority, that Kelly, offered to become an informer against his associates, but the authorities refused to accept of his services. After his discharge he resided with his relatives at Pennywell. He was lame, and at the time of his arrest was not in good health, but his brother Fenians believed that his death on Friday was the result of his incarceration. Accordingly on Sunday evening they assembled to the number of about seven hundred, and took advantage of the occasion to make a "demonstration" of their numbers. The hearse intended to carry the coffin was decorated with green boughs, the horses were similarly decorated, as was the coffin, which was borne from Pennywell to Killybeg Church Yard on men's shoulders. The processionists carried pieces of evergreen in their hats or in their hands, and they marched four deep after the coffin, the hearse preceding it, from Pennywell, through Garryowen, John's-square, Cornwallis-street, William-street, George-street, Patrick-street, Rutland-street, the Mall, over Ball's Bridge, through Nicholas-street, and Mary-street, and over Thomond Bridge, on to Killybeg Church Yard where the interment took place, followed by a crowd of about 2,000 spectators. Such a display was never witnessed in Limerick, but we rejoice to state that the processionists belonged to the lowest classes in the city, very few, if any, respectable mechanics being amongst them. Of course if it had been known to the parties that Kelly had, in the county gaol, offered to become an informer, they would have treated the remains differently. Head-Constables O'Connor and Robinson, with a large force of police followed after the procession, but no breach of the peace was committed, nor did they deem it necessary to make any arrests.

INQUEST.

On yesterday, John Gleeson, Esq., city coroner, held an inquest on Catharine Daly, who resided at Doherty's-lane, Broad-street. Deceased was 75 years old, and was a roomkeeper, but earned a livelihood by picking feathers, which avocation she filled up to Saturday last. She went to mass on Sunday, partook of a meal at half-past seven o'clock

LONDON RELIG

On last evening a and supporters of th held in the Protestant The attendance of lad larger than has been g sions. On the motion Moderator of the Pr the chair was taken l The meeting having exercises,

The Chairman expi gentleman had not be marked that the re occupy the chair was man to take it. He desirability of the lair useful works as that the operations of attended with bless souls. They were s object for which the became unnecessary with explaining it. ceeded to speak in f society, and remarks career he had never lection of their publ generously responde a tract to be a most rial work, for the pr a conversation of naively added that they all became ' working for the brit proceeded to rela arising from the dis and he concluded by notice of the meeti

The Rev. Dr. W address the meetin on being presided o Rev. Mr. Gregg, a aptly fitted for the of the most zealous clergymen in the c acknowledged hims sort. The rev. spe the great benefits a Press in disseminat and religious publi that of all the Socie the London Tract had read that mor a paragraph in refe was stated that th 46,000,000 tracts i asked the Secretar Burns, if that we been made, but he was perfectly true. at some length at Society in distribu in spreading abroa Christ. He next assisting in the d could become a fe' ners, by bringing t tact under the sav

The Rev. Jas. V dressed the meeti testaments, coming f truth through jus a neutral platform of Christians coul that they would a the Society, for th as that of all the first place to their notice b poor and the lowly homes of these truths of Chris gentle hands of C how far grander and those born truths to the poe time with those the drawing-room wordly enjoymer late Duke of V maxim to do h God should plac planation of thapriety of seeking performing them appearing 'befor Day, they might