 It had come to be so much a national many it created neither surprise nor it was winked and connived at, and ed upon as a thing that could not be e endured, while those who deplored to put it down, were looked upon as listubers of the public peace. This which, to his mind was one calling for sideration of the clergy and church-an occasion like the present. The tmony of ministers of religion, marrders, judges, medical men, prisonrisoners themselves was that the drunkenness was exactly in proportions and temptations offered for the habit. One of our coroners of the 690 inquests held in were upon persons who had fallen king; and the late Coroner of Middle-he had reason to believe that from 00 persons die annually in the metro-effects of gin drinking, upon whom
