Mr Burke did not wish, he said, to impute anything to the guardians. He had merely made a statement, which he considered his duty, and he hoped he would get credit for being actuated by no desire to intimate anything that would be hurtful. The matter then ended, and no action being taken on the part of Mr Burke, the Board adjourned.

Large Stores, Kilns, Flour and Oatmeal Mills, Retail and other Offices, various Buildings suitable for farming or manufacturing purposes; large Yards, and nice Residence and Garden, all enclosed within high walls. The water-power is very good, but, if desirable, can, at inconsiderable cost, be largely increased, in consequence of the premises being now in the hands of the head landlord who owns the surrounding landlord. There is auxiliary steam power; a good corn-market on the spot. To accommodate a good tenant, the proprietor might let a smaller or larger quantity (immediately adjoining) of Blackwater townland.

For a flax or woollen factory it is believed the premises afford peculiar facilities.

A few days ago, John Collins, a servant of Mr. Townsend's of Whitehall, picked up in Roaring Water Bay, on the Whitehall demesne, a large black bottle, which had been just washed ashore, and strange to say, the bottle was completely covered over with barnacles, measuring over eighteen inches long, indicating that the bottle must be a very long time—nay, many years afloat in the ocean. The bottle was also tightly corked, and the contents, which appeared to be paper in a state of utter decomposition, could not be made out. When the cork was removed the contents fell away in small or minute fragments.
