November 17.

As a Dissolution of Parliament ... place, I beg to solicit, for the third time, a renewal of the trust with which you have honoured me for the last nine years.

I make this appeal with the greater confidence from the kind reception you have given me, and the almost unanimous promises of support I have received in the course of my recent canvass.

Grateful for your many favours, I have endeavoured to deserve them by the faithful performance of my duties as your Representative.

I have been constant in my attendance in the House and have never been absent from any important divi- sion. I have invariably voted with the Liberal party, and, if again elected, I shall continue to give its great leader, Mr Gladstone, a loyal support, in fluenced by personal admiration and political sym- pathy.

As there was no effort at legislation on the Land Question during the last Session, I endeavoured as an instalment of justice to the tenant, to pass a Bill providing for the payment of County cess by land- lord and tenant on the same principle as Poor Rates. Though the Bill was defeated for the time, its justice was admitted, and I may fairly say it was only postponed for the purpose of more comprehen- sive legislation on the relations subsisting between the owners and occupiers of the soil.

As in the past I have made it a rule of my con duct in Parliament always to consult the wishes o my constituents, so in the future, as long as you honour me with your confidence, I shall act on thi sound maxim, and to the best of my ability prove myself the faithful representative of your opinions and feelings.

I have the honour to be,
Your faithful and obedient servant,
WILLIAM STACPOOLE.
