magistrates present were—Edmond Blake, R.M., Thomas Greene, and P. Maxwell Cullinan, M.D., Esqrs. A man named Keane was summoned by a person named Galvin for assaulting him on the previous Tuesday. It appeared by the evidence that the defendant was after getting married, when he observed, as he considered, the prosecutor and some others laughing at himself and his fair bride in Church-street, which caused him to lay hold of Galvin and chuck him about. Fined 6s., and costs.

COROFIN PETTY SESSIONS.

At the above petty sessions, on Wednesday, a servant-man named Michael Custy was charged with an attempt of an indecent character on the wife of a workman living at Mogouna, midway between Corofin and Ennis. The evidence in the case was to the effect that on the occasion of the prosecutrix being alone with her two children, her husband having been engaged in driving cattle to the fair of Ballinasloe, the accused at ten o'clock at night knocked at the door, and having been admitted attempted an indecent assault, which had been, however, successfully resisted.

Information was received, and the prisoner was committed to take his trial at the next assizes.

CORONER'S INQUEST.

On Tuesday an inquest was held by John Cullinan, Esq., in the neighbourhood of Lisdoonvarna, on the body of an old man named Considine, who had died on his way from Ennistymon market whilst in a state of intoxication in a car. The verdict was in accordance with the evidence.

FAIR OF COROFIN.

At the fair of Corofin on yesterday the price of stock was high and averaged—Three-year old heifers from £13 to £17; two-year old from £11 to £13; yearlings from £5 to 7s 10s; springers from £12 to £18; hoggets from 2s. to 4s.; widders from 5s to 5s. The prices of bacon pigs averaged 60s. per cwt.

A WORK OF ART.

A very excellent painting, the chef d'oeuvre of the late gifted artist, Mr. P. O'Halloran, of Thomas-street, Limerick, is at present to be seen in the sanctuary of the R. C. Chapel here, and has attracted many admirers. The work is of much value, and represents "The Assumption" in the full size of six feet by four. It is proposed to be raffled for the benefit of the widow and orphans of the artist, whose inability to compete for national fame might have arisen from the untoward circumstances of an adverse destiny rather than the absence of the mens divinior, which, as a Clareman, he might be expected to possess equally with Mullready and other gifted sons of this classic county.

A shocking incident, says the Cork Examiner, of workhouse life was brought under the notice of the guardians of the Kanturk Union yesterday. A patient in their hospital considering himself illused by one of the female nurses, took the common revenge of peaching on his enemy, and one of his revelations was singularly horrible. He states that seven weeks ago a patient named Brien was left unattended in a dying state, and that working in the agonies of death the wretched man wriggled out of his bed and fell prone on the floor, where he lay struggling in mortal pangs until death came, and ended all his sufferings and sorrows. The nurse's own defence was that "it was impossible to keep him in the bed, as he was in the agonies of death, and was kicking all before him and saying 'Lord have mercy on me.'" We should think he had good need to appeal to the mercy of God, seeing the nature of the mercy he was experiencing from men.

The election of Mayor of Cork took place yesterday in the City Courthouse, which was crowded to suffocation. The proceedings were extremely noisy, and two candidates were put in nomination—Mr Alderman W Hegarty, a moderate Liberal; and Mr Councillor Nagle, Nationalist. A poll was taken, and 27 members of the Council voted for Hegarty, and 8 for Nagle. Among those who voted for Mr Hegarty was the ex-mayor, Daniel O'Sullivan. No Conservatives were present. The courthouse was densely crowded with an immense mob, which favoured Mr Nagle. On Mr Hegarty being declared elected, some of the mob made a rush towards the chair, and heaped on their former favourite, the ex-mayor, violent abuse for his resignation, and for having voted for Hegarty. The proceedings terminated amid a scene of immense confusion.
