WATERFORD ELECTION PETITION.—Mr. Monahan addressed the court on Saturday morning, on behalf of the petitioners, and stated that the circumstances surrounding the last petition warranted the present proceedings. Counsel then referred at length to cases on which they relied, remarking specially on those of Walsh, the Clametts, and Young. He made an eloquent speech. Judgment will be delivered on Monday morning, at 10 o'clock.

THE WATERFORD ELECTION PETITION.—Baron Hughes delivered judgment yesterday morning on the Waterford Election Petition. He dismissed the petition against Mr. Osborne's return with costs against the petitioners. Out of the eight allegations put forward by them, five had been abandoned by their own counsel, and his lordship felt compelled to dismiss the other three as entirely unsubstantiated by evidence. His lordship commented strongly on the way some of the petitioner's witnesses gave their evidence, but did not direct any prosecution for bribery. The town is as yet quiet, but the result has caused the greatest excitement.

MALLOW ELECTION.—On yesterday Lieut Colonel Hickie issued an address to the electors of Mallow as a candidate, in the room of Mr. Munster, unseated. He says he is a supporter of the Land Bill, denominational education, the ballot, amnesty to the political prisoners, and local self legislation. He is opposed to interference with monastic and conventual institutions.

CORK TOWN COUNCIL AND THE INSPECTION OF CONVENTS.—At the Town Council yesterday, Councillor Daly proposed a resolution condemning the proposed inquiry into conventual institutions, and petitioning to have the order of the House of Commons discharged. He said since he was able to form an idea he saw nothing in this country but measures of coercion and measures of violence. He saw one time attempts at rebellion, while he saw at present a Government who entered office as the harbingers of peace, professing to pass remedial bills, now going to withdraw the Land Bill, after having passed the Coercion Bill. These proceedings forced men to the conviction that the affairs of this country could only be properly administered by a native parliament.—These opinions were generally endorsed. Alderman Dwyer said the proposed inquiry must unite Irishmen in a great outcry for the repeal of the Union. In putting the resolution, the Mayor said it would be at the point of the bayonet these inspectors would go into convents (applause). He would stand up as Chief Magistrate of Cork, and he would have the City of Cork rise in rebellion against any armed force who would contemplate entering those institutions. Sir Roche, as a liberal Protestant, indorsed the resolution, which was unanimously adopted.

"ONE OF THE 20,000 NOT RORY OF THE HILLS"
 "This notice I am quite and positively certain does not come from any person in the locality, but from that body which has been allowed to exist so long in Ireland—which issues its sentences for the murder of any landlord who acts contrary to its laws, which are like those of the Medes and Persians, and which laws, generally made by strangers to the locality, are always given to strangers to the locality to execute. I have declined to enter into any arrangements in the matter with the Government—its police magistrates, its police officers, or its police—but intend to adopt my own course. My tenantry have already resolved on having a meeting on Wednesday to consider the subject, and I am quite certain they are independent enough and intelligent enough to properly investigate and deliberate on the entire matter

Your obedient servant,

"H M D'ARCY IRVINE."
