THE TERMS OF PEACE.—The that, driven into a corner as M. Thiers, low negotiators were at Versailles, help coming to a resolution, and it inevitable that their resolution should at discretion. M. Thiers will go to-day occupied with as sad though have grieved the soul of a patriot. A man of such a high position as a statesman could hardly persuaded to the German terms when in the German camp, he may well despair to persuade a large body of his countrymen of whom have seen of little the terms he knows to be so harsh when it necessary to accept. We cannot say) but share his apprehensions at The Assembly at Bordeaux is indeed it was in a sense elected to make peace with a certain reservation of national was not without meaning, though in definition. Would that to-morrow peace was come! Would, we may could see any way in which our influence used in restoring peace to Europe! of terms of peace is a legitimate subject to neutrals. Mr. Gladstone has in declaration in the last fortnight, and late we might submit that the time have been waiting when we could effect is come now if it is to come.

FRIGHTFUL MURDER BY A RELIGIOUS
At the Liverpool Police-court, on Wednesday, the 27th inst., Frederick Crawley, a man who has been a public institution in the town, was found to be suffering from a religious mania, and charged with the wilful murder of a child two years old. He took the child yesterday morning, and in a room privately cut the child's throat with a knife, called the mother down immediately when he presented her with the body. When apprehended, he acknowledged the crime, and was remanded until the inquest place.

The Legal Peace Society on Friday passed a resolution condemning the pro military purposes as injurious to the empire, and especially to those
