

lad. Witness believed the man and that the treatment he received was unskilful and unnecessary. He thought the deceased would recover if he had been treated more judiciously. Witness made a post mortem examination of the body of the deceased at the workhouse hospital. The exhaustion consequent upon the operation and the presence of a weak heart. Gangrene induced the operation. He would call the original cause of death, and its immediate cause.

After having been examined, including the magistrates returned the verdict at the assizes.
