I appeal to public opinion in this public opinion has supported me, and substantiated that the public opinion will recognize me and back my friend as long as I am true to the principles which we put in the county. I feel that if I live for 20 years to represent you, you would, as long as I take the same course, be satisfied and believe in me, and that if my friend lives to the end and pursues the same course, you will remain faithful to him. I do not hope to be so advanced an age. I cannot hope to be able to discharge my duties to the extent which I can now. There was no life in me when for two or three years I was with illness, and really the consideration was exhibited for me during that time the labours I have undergone in your service a sufficient recompense to me if I represent you for forty years more. Mr Trench was aided by expressing his pleasure in my vote of thanks which had been proposed by my friend and colleague, and on behalf of the High Sheriff, accepted the vote of thanks, and the proceed-

REPRESENTATION OF COUNTY TIPPERARY.

Mr Smyth arrived in Clonmel last night at 10 o'clock train from Carrick, and was met by a torchlight procession and the Band, accompanied by a tremendous crowd at the railway station to Hearn's Hotel, where he was presented with an address from the people of Clonmel. The Mayor of Clonmel, Mr Bennett, spoke strongly in favour of my candidature as the nominee of bishops, and the people of Tipperary. Mr Smyth replied in his usual eloquence on the questions and said he was prepared to wear the honour had been placed on the head of John Mitchell would take care that no truckster would take the electors of Tipperary of their honour had been done on the occasion of the election when Mitchell was unseated by Judge Cassidy. He was a Nationalist in the sense of the word; he was for Irish independence and he hoped the cause which Tipperary at heart would triumph throughout (tremendous cheering). On the part of me and that of his friend and colleague, I begged to thank them in advance for they would do them bosh by selecting me as he believed they would do unopposed, and, by an overwhelming majority.

by presided at the Lincashire session at Clonmel on Thursday, and spoke of the Home Office, urging the necessity of all possible cases to sessions, rather than for trial. He said this was, in his very wise recommendation.
