

JACOB AND VACCINATION

Following letter appears in the Irish

My attention has been directed to an article in the Irish Times of the 21st inst., in which it is stated that I am "late of the city of London and that in 'disgust and despair' I have returned to the 'land of the free,' only to find that the vaccination laws were so strict that they have denied admission to a public school. I say that in the autumn of last year I returned to my family from their native country of Pennsylvania, beyond the persecuting guardians of Limerick, where I have since lived in great happiness and there is not one word of truth that has reached you that they were denied admission to school, which they there and.

My fair of you to speak of me as "late of London" inasmuch as I am the sole owner of a business in this city, where I am engaged in the personal management of a concern to which my large family look for support.

to say that I am still unmoved in my opinion that tens of thousands of helpless victims to abominable diseases, which are destroyed by their systems by the doctor's vaccine, and I believe it to be a father's duty to defend his child from that which would destroy his health and happiness.

My parent's natural prerogative, which I shall deprive me of. — I remain, your friend and respect-
