size, his hands were so enlarged that he could scarcely hold anything; in fact, he was helpless and crippled and was almost crazy with agonizing rheumatism. Last June, at the suggestion of a friend, this new and wonderful discovery, St Jacobs Oil, was applied according to directions, and in the course of a week he was able to walk, and for the first time for twelve years to have something like a night's rest. He regained the use of his limbs and resumed work. The Magazine, after giving particulars of other equally startling cures, closes by saying that it is not to be wondered at that an experience like this should arrest public attention, and become the subject of comment by leading journals. It adds that the remedy is certainly a most remarkable one, and that the proprietors—The Charles A. Vogeler Company,—have established a branch house at 45 Farringdon Road, London.
