

Some cases of abusive language between females having been disposed of, the court adjourned.

ADDRESS TO THE EARL OF ERNE.—A Jubilee soiree was held in the Ulster Hall, Belfast, last evening, under the auspices of the District Orange Lodge, and was made the occasion for presenting an address of welcome and congratulation to the Earl of Erne, Grand Master of the Orangemen of Ireland, who presided. Lord Erne, in replying to the address, said that the venomous attacks made by their opponents in the House of Commons on the Orange institution proved its value as a bulwark of the liberties of the country, and also remarked that, though the number of the constitutional representatives of Ireland had been reduced, there were now more Orangemen sitting in the House of Commons than ever before at one time. On the motion of Sir J. Preston, a resolution was passed assuring their countrymen of all creeds and classes of their desire to co-operate with them in every loyal practicable scheme for the good of the country, and earnestly repudiating the charges of bigotry and intolerance so persistently made against them by professional agitators.
