FUNERAL OF THE LATE STEPHEN JOSEPH MEANY.

The funeral of the late Stephen Joseph Meany which took place on Sunday last, was a very imposing one. As already published, Mr Meany died at Waterbury, Connecticut, where he had been editing a newspaper known as the Evening Democrat, and his remains were brought across to Ireland for interment at Dromcliffe churchyard, situate within a mile of his native town. Contingents of Nationalists attended from all parts of the county and also from Galway, Tipperary, Limerick and Cork. A special train leaving Limerick at eleven o'clock, was well freighted with passengers and also the Victuallers and St John's Bands. A large force of police and Military (Sherwood Foresters) were drafted into town, under the command of Captain Welsh, R M, but no interference whatever was made with the demonstration. The procession left the chapel, where the body had been since its arrival in Ennis, shortly after half past two o'clock. Some twenty bands with muffled drums played the "Dead March," numberless draped banners and bannerettes were carried by those in the procession, and the processionists wore crapes on the left arm, interwoven with green. The order of the procession was as follows—First came the bier drawn by four horses, then the floral wreaths (which were brought from America), after which came the Victuallers' Brass Band, Limerick, and St John's fife and drum band, Limerick. Next came the casket containing the remains and immediately following it was Mr John D Meany (son of the deceased), Mrs Meany (mother), Mrs Francis, of New York (sister) and Mr Martin Scally, of Waterbury, into whose charge the remains were given before leaving America. Next in order was the deputation from Cork who carried wreaths from the Cork National League, and the Cork Young Ireland Society. Next in order were the members of the Dalcassian Club, the members of the Odd-Fellows branch, Ennis; the Dalgey Club, Newmarket-on-Fergus; the Doora Club, the Mechanics' brass band, Ennis; the deputation from the Limerick Congregated Trades; the members of the Ennis Mechanics' Institute, the harness makers and shoe makers, Ennis; the sawyers and bakers, Ennis; the bakers and joiners, Limerick; the Kildysart Hurling Club, the Corofin Hurling Club, St Patrick's Juvenile Fife and Drum Band, Ennis; St Patrick's Temperance Hurling Club, Ennis; the Crusheen Brass Band, the Killowen Hurling Club, the Quin Football Club, the Ardsollus Football Club, St Mary's Fife and Drum Band, Limerick; the A M Sullivan Hurling Club, Ennis; the Boherbuoy Fife and Drum Band, Limerick; No 1 National Brass Band, Limerick; the Inagh Football Club, the Ennis National League and the members of the committee having charge of the arrangements. A long line of vehicles followed, and the rear was brought up by another line of pedestrians. The route was from the New Chapel, through O'Connell Square, Bindon street, Harmony Row, past the monument to the Manchester martyrs, through Mill street, Church street, and thence to Dromcliffe Churchyard. The latter place was reached at four o'clock. The grave was lined with brick, and when the casket was lowered into it, it was covered over with flags, thus forming a vault.

When the coffin had been lowered into the grave, and before the covering was placed over the casket, Mr Snelling, who stood by the grave, addressed the concourse at some length on the late Mr Meany's career.

Mr Stephen Clancy also spoke, calling upon every one present "to make a vow that the principles of Meany's life would be perpetuated, and that his ashes would never have to raise up against his fellow-countrymen in reproach for any of their acts. He said "they would live conformably to the principles of the dead patriot until they had once more restored to our land her stolen rights" (applause).

The grave was then flagged over and the people dispersed.

On returning from Ennis to Clare Castle in the evening the soldiers sang, when passing through the streets, "God Save the Queen" and "Rule Britannia," waving their helmets and cheering at the conclusion of each verse, but no unpleasantness arose in consequence of the incident.

MEMORIAL TO THE LATE MR W. H. O'SULLIVAN.

On Sunday last a large meeting was held in the National League rooms, Kilmallock, for the purpose of taking steps to erect a memorial to the memory of the late Mr W H O'Sullivan, who up to some years ago had been member of Parliament for East Limerick. The Rev J Hallinan, C C, was moved to the chair, and in opening the proceedings said it was not necessary to say one single word to them of the merits of him who they knew so well to be a consistent and thorough Irishman (hear, hear). While life was left him
