

THE LIMERICK CHRONICLE TUESDAY

It be attended to unless of the writer, as a
but not necessary for undertake to refer

the insertion should be twelve o'clock on Saturdays. Where
needed, small advert

Institute for Advertis
on days of publication
not later than Fri
Wednesday, and Frida

and letters of credit
, and communications
passed to THE MANAGER
ICLE.

THE LIMERICK CHRONICLE ESTD 1766.]

G, JUNE 24, 1890

ne of some importance, a limit of service which n the regular army a nate those rising from introduction of the e was no period specified ommission could be hort period of service.
t ought to have been if bona fide—that is, if re army as privates, by to duty, and good con-
the various steps and r higher duties. But Far from it. The emocratic as all that.
place from the ranks,
who possessed certain
not wealth in addition,
l distinction of a com-om the ranks of the DEATH OF MR JOHN CARR.—We regret to record the demise of Mr John Carr, tobacco manufacturer, which took place at his residence 32 Patrick street, on Sunday night. Mr Carr was an old and respected citizen, and one whose name has long been associated with a large business connection. He had been ailing for some months past during which time he was attended by Dr Barry. The deceased was 71 years of age.

SALE OF A VALUABLE SECURITY THIS DAY.—The very valuable perpetual chief rent of £147 2s 1d derived from and charged on certain landed property at Croom, was submitted to public competition by Mr F. W. McCarthy, auctioneer, at his Mart, 60, George street, to day. There was a good attendance, and bidding opened at £2,000 and increased gradually to the sum of £2,800, at which figure and auction fees it was knocked down to Mr James G. Barry, J.P. Mr W. H. Holland, solicitor, Doctors Commons, London, who was in attendance, had carriage of sale.

THEATRE ROYAL.

The Walsham English Opera Company commenced an engagement of six nights at the Theatre Royal last evening before a very good house. Wallace's beautiful opera, "Maritana," was produced, and the performance was much appreciated. Several of the artistes were warmly applauded, and encores were frequent during the evening. To-night the ever-popular opera, "The Bohemian Girl," will be presented, while on Wednesday evening a rare treat will be afforded the public, when Flotow's romantic work, "Martha" will be placed on the boards, we believe for the first time here for fifteen years. The piece, Flotow's chef d'œuvre, is founded on the "Last Rosa of Summer," which melody runs through the entire opera. The comic situations and delicious charm of melody in this work render it most acceptable and entertaining, and we shall be surprised if it does not attract a crowded house. On Thursday evening "Fra Diavolo" will be performed, and on Friday a second novelty will be presented to us in the "Lily of Killarney."

THE HORSE SHOW.

The Limerick Horse Show will open to-morrow on the Market grounds. The entries are very large and fine weather is all that is now needed to make the exhibition a great success. It is to be hoped that we shall not be disappointed from an atmospherical point of view. The arrange-

AMALGAMATED SOCIETY EMPLOYEES

MEETING IN LLM

On Sunday Mr Foreman, the Amalgamated Society of Railway Men, addressed a large meeting at the Rooms of the Waterford and Western Union. The local men of the Waterford and Western Company were with the following deputation from the Waterford and Limerick body—Messrs: G. Dillon, T. J. Mangan, J. Madigan, M. J. Dunphy, secretary.

Mr Foreman in the course of his object in coming amongst them view to their better organization of a branch of the Amalgamated Society of Railway Men amongst them. He learned that the Waterford and Western Company had a society of their own. He was glad to hear that it had done good work, and he wished them to get on. He was glad to know, which they were now going to do, which their brother workers could assist. The Press had severely criticised the society, and that of the society he should deny that any action taken by the men recently thought fit to take in regard to that society, or represent thought the men would bear the consequences of whatever was done was their own responsibility. The society, he said, was only did so as it was in duty bound to do. He said that the men who were members of the society were in trouble (hear, hear), and in consequence of an allegation that there had been some irregularities in the society, he stated neither the rules nor the constitution of the society would in any way be altered. Every body of members of this society in England and Ireland was treated the same. He said that the society was thoroughly democratic one, and that no action was taken by any section was their own responsibility, but that the society was bound to their aid when they were in trouble, while he said that he would not be in any agitation they should exercise caution and that he was sure would be the result. He said that he knew the penalty they would incur if they took an indiscreet step—their claims being assured them the claims of the other societies, or rather the answers to the